150 ARRESTED IN MOTOR LAW DRIVE

GIRL SAVES CAR, DEFIES GUNMEN

Because of the bravery of his sister, Lillian Gainor, 20, who refused to flinch when covered by muzzles of three revolvers, L. B. Gainor, of 185 Kendall avenue, Bellevue, was driving his automobile today following its recovery after a wild chase in North Side streets Saturday night. Miss Gainor is a secretary at the David B. Oliver High School.

Two hours after Gainor reported the loss of his car to Bellevue police, he and his three sisters, Mrs. Marie Thompson, Ora and Lillian Gainor and Edward Miller, all of Bellevue, and C. R. Halleran, of Butler, were riding in the latter's machine when they saw the stolen automobile in California avenue near Island avenue, North Side.

Halleran gave chase and succeeded in heading off the thieves when they neared Columbus avenue and Brighton road. Lillian Gainer jumped out of the Halleran car and confronted the three men who were driving her brother's machine. The man sitting next to the driver drew two revolvers and the driver also exhibited a weapon, but the girl refused to get off the running board.

Frightened at the approach of Gainor, Miller and Halleran, the thugs jumped out of the car and escaped, according to a police report.

STOCKS SINK, JERSEY DIPS UNDER 50

Rockefeller Oil Shares Break Level at Which 1,000,000 Share Bid Was Placed

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Standard Oil of New Jersey common stock broke through the price of $50 on the New York Stock Exchange today, selling at $49, off $2. This was the first time it had gone below the $50 price at which the spectacular bid for 1,000,000 shares halted the decline a year ago.

The stock received strong support around $49 and rallied above $50 once more.

UNDER PRESSURE

The stock of the big oil company had been meeting strong support in the lower fifties, but was under severe pressure today and finally made its break on a sale of 2,500 shares.

Scores of other important issues were hurried into new low ground early in the afternoon when the market became very soft, with losses of $1 to $10. There had been a moderately active rally during the first hour of trading, but prices began to slide off rapidly late in the morning.

DRAMATIC BID

It was nearly a year ago that the dramatic order for 1,000,000 shares of "J," which is the market symbol for Standard Oil of New Jersey, was placed. Presumably, it came from the Rockefellers, although this was never officially confirmed. A few hundred shares were taken at that price on that day and the stock promptly rallied, leaving the bulk of the order unfilled.

Foreign markets were likewise weak and there were reports of financial difficulties in Paris. Wheat broke to new lows in Chicago.

On the stock exchange here, only one active stock was left in the exclusive $200 class which had so many representatives little more than a year ago. The lone survivor was Central Railroad of New Jersey.

QUIZ POLICE IN STUDENT BATTLE

Clark Wants to Know if Unnecessary Roughness Was Used on Students

A probe to determine whether police used "unduly rough tactics" during student outburst at the Pitt-Carnegie Tech game at the Pitt Stadium Saturday was started today by Director James M. Clark, of the department of public safety.

Clark announced he intended conferring sometime today with Inspectors James N. Hoey and Albert Beebe, who were in charge of police details at the game, in an effotr to learn whether accusations of unwarranted police roughness in handling the situation were true. What further action he would take should the charges be true, was not divulged.

STUDIES PICTURES

From photographs printed in newspapers, Clark said, portraying tussles of blue coats with over-enthusiastic Tech and Pitt rooters, the thought came to him that unnecessary force might have been used.

Seven University of Pittsburgh students and a citizen, arrested Saturday in the last outbreak of student rioting which covered a 24-hour period, were discharged in Oakland Police Court yesterday.

They gave their names as S. R. Harper, 35, of 6923 Manistee street; Wesley Bossan, 21, of Charleroi; W. J. Adams, 21, of 406 California avenue, Avalon; J. F. Hotchkiss, 29, of Orange, N. J.; J. Zigmore, 22, of 3147 Brackenridge street; James Weiller, 21, of 412 Neville street; Harry Metzler, 18, of 118 Annabelle street, and F. W. Menz, 21, of Millvale.

84 ARRESTED

Their arrests brought to 84 the number caught in police nets during a series of student outbreaks before and after Saturday's football game here. All have been discharged.

The last outbreak came when Pitt students attempted to regain possession of a coffin stolen earlier in the day from the stands at the Pitt Stadium. Several were clubbed by police.

STATE, CITY POLICE NAB VIOLATORS

Uninspected Cars Lead to 50 Arrests—37 Highway Patroimen Aid Crusade

A sweeping crusade against motorists in the city who failed to have their cars inspected or otherwise violated the motor laws netted at least 150 arrests at noon today.

Lieut. A. J. Oldham, of the state highway patrol, in announcing the number, said that 50 of the total were driving uninspected cars.

The crusade, which started this 9 o'clock, was a co-operative one, 37 highway patrolmen riding with an equal number of city motorcyclemen. Special attention was directed at West Liberty avenue, where a fatal wreck took three lives last night.

DIRECT CRUSADES

Capt. Philip J. Dorr, of the highway patrol, Inspector of Traffic Jacob Dorsey, Assistant Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall and Lieut. Oldham directed the 74 men to cover every main artery in the city. A week's grace had been allowed delinquent motorists to have their cars inspected, the time limit having expired November 1.

The "sticker dodgers" arrested were taken direct to the offices of various aldermen, where those who asked immediate hearings were fined $10 and costs.

NET SPREAD

The police net was out for a number of drivers who, Capt. Dorr said, were Pennsylvania residents operating with Ohio licenses, having obtained them after their licenses in this state had been revoked.

Those arrested for not having stickers were ordered to produce their cars at one of the four highway patrol stations within 48 hours. These stations are in Washington boulevard, Perrysville, Parnassus and New Eagle.

HOLDS TUNNEY PLOT VICTIM

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney's attorney charged in court today that Timothy J. Mara, suing for $500,000, and Billy Gibson, Tunney's former manager, had conspirited to victimize the former heavyweight boxing champion.

Emory R. Buckner made the charge in summing up Tunney's case in the breach of contract suit, which was to go to the jury this afternoon. Gibson, originally a co-defendant with Tunney, was freed of liability last week. The one-time Tunney manager recently was judged incompetent.

Buckner said:

"It was the old game, the old racket, of making a sucker out of a man. It is perfectly apparent that Gibson and Mara were equally anxious to make Gene Tunney sign those contracts."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A joint statement by Secretaries Hurley and Adams today acknowledged that the Army and Navy were as yet unable to settle their differences over the question of the resumption of athletic relations.

Army and Navy—Play Football or Face the Marines

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We don't see how Army and Navy can refuse to play a football game for charity.

It must be done.

The ticket speculators demand it.

West Point and Annapolis are properties of the American public

If you think so try and start a basket party on the commandant's lawn.

The big colleges of America could raise millions of dollars for the unemployed.

And the first to benefit by that fund would be the cheerleaders.

Every big sporting event this winter should be for charity.

President Hoover is head man of the Army and Navy. Make 'em play each other before we sic the Marines on 'em.

The writer hasn't played football in 20 years. But he will step out and carry that ball through the line. Provided the players promise to replace their divots.

29 OVERBROOK JOBS HALTED

That city council will not adopt the extensive Overbrook improvement program outlined and authorized by the borough council before that section was annexed to Pittsburgh was indicated today when 29 ordinances repealing street and sewer improvements were received.

The work included 26 street improvements and three sewer projects at a total cost of $561,929. The borough was annexed to the city shortly after the borough council had authorized the expenditure and, although no work has been started on the 29 improvements cited today, work on other similar improvements was stopped by city authorities.

Boat Burns; Firemen In River

Two firemen were hurled into the chilly waters of the Allegheny River this afternoon, while fighting flames that destroyed a house boat near the Brilliant Pumping Station, opposite Aspinwall.

The boat, owned by Alex Lazaroff, was used as a commisary and lodging place by workmen for the constructing the Allegheny River boulevard.

Firemen from No. 38 company were compelled to lay 1,000 feet of hose from the pumping station. Before their arrival Lazaroff and his aids planned to cut the boat adrift to save other houseboats in the vicinity.

Hosemen Harold Roweren and Thomas Deere were thrown into the river when the hawser burned off and the craft swung into the current. Lazaroff estimated his loss at $2,000.

Canadian Woman M. P. Assails Dry Law Here

Miss Agnes McPhail, only woman member of the Canadian Parliament, as independent delegate from Ontario, in Pittsburgh today, said that prohibition in the United States has plunged the nation so deeply in corruption that something should be done quickly to remedy the evil.

She said:

"Prohibition has made people of all classes 'liquor-minded.' During and after the World War, Canada suffered from the same form of corruption among officials and individuals that is now hurting the United States.

"In Ontario, since the government took over control of liquor sales and banned public drinking, drunkeness and consumption of liquor have been greatly reduced."

Miss MacPhail has been in the United States since October 10 and said she had seen only one drunken man. He was in a New York hotel elevator.

Miss MacPhail declares she personally is a foe of liquor.

Miss MacPhail, a peace advocate, speaks tonight on World Peace before the Y. M. and Y. W. Hebrew Associations. She declared another big war is impending and says that if it comes, "white civilization" will be destroyed.

20 Injured as Elephants Stampede in London

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A combination of an artificial lion mascot and exploding fireworks proved too much for four elephants in the Lord Mayor's show today and they stampeded. When the excitement was all over, about 20 persons, mostly women and children, were found injured by the scattering crowd.

So far as known, none of them was trampled by the elephants.

The leader of the herd trumpeted wildly when he saw the artificial lion carried by a student. Then the fireworks went off and the elephant charged the crowd. He seized the mascot with his trunk, scattering the students in a mad jam. The other three elephants followed their leader in pursuit of the "lion."

The crowd ran in all directions and some of those injured were severely trampled.

Pinchot's Victory No Surprise to Forester

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot wasn't elected governor of Pennsylvania until last Tuesday, but as long ago as two months he felt that victory was going to perch on his standard.

Two months ago the Social Register Association mailed him a blank card to be filled out for 1930. The card came back bearing the information that the Pinchot address was to be changed from 1615 Rhode Island avenue, Washington, D. C., to the executive mansion, Harrisburg, Pa.

Savoldi Admits Marriage; Rockne 'Forgives All'

SOUTH BEND, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame football star, today admitted he was a married man, but insisted he had not lived with his wife, the former Audrey Koehler, of South Bend. Savoldi said:

"It was a mistake I realized as soon as the marriage ceremony was performed, and I will get the marriage annulled as soon as possible."

The marriage ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace April 3, 1929.

What effect the marriage will have on Savoldi's status as a student at Notre Dame was undetermined today, although the general opinion was that the university authorities would look upon it as a mistake of an impetuous youth and be lenient in view of Savoldi's statement that he would seek an annullment.

Knute Rockne said:

"Savoldi is just a big, goodhearted kid, and made a mistake. He told me he had not seen Miss Koehler since they were married."

COALITION CONGRESS TO FIGHT ECONOMIC DEPRESSION

G.O.P. HAILS SUPPORT OF DEMOCRATS

Sniping at Hoover Policies To Be Banned by Foes In Drive to Revive Trade

By FRASER EDWARDS.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Something resembling a congenial combination of the Republicans and Democrats in Congress solely for the economic welfare of America today appeared to be the final result of the bitterly contested off-year elections.

This was indicated by a formal statement issued by Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the Senate, in which he accepted "with full faith and credit" the proffer of aid made by the seven Democratic leaders in "every measure that conduces to the welfare of the country."

After reading the Watson statement, Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic leaders, said:

COALITION GOVERNMENT

"It is virtual acceptance, of the offer of a coalition government and it makes me very happy. The main thing in the minds of every patriotic American is to right the economic machine in this country. Partisan politics is adjourned, I believe, until that end is accomplished."

Watson, in his statement, which represented the concensus of Republican opinion—for it was written after much parley in which President Hoover was included—said:

"I accept with full faith and credit the pronouncements of the seven Democratic leaders. We are very happy to know that their representation in Congress will co-operate with us in all legislative acts that tend to promote public well-being, and furthermore it is gratifying to know that they will not obstruct or embarrass the President in the conduct of the government.

"I could, of course, indulge in criticism at the obviously political propoganda which accompanies their public assurance and I could recriminate as to the past, but this is not the spirit in which I desire to accept their offer of co-operation.

CRISIS FACES NATION

"The country is in a time of difficulty from world-wide causes and co-operative action in the Congress is necessary. I believe their statement should steady the public mind. It was, no doubt, put forward in the hope that it would stabilize the public markets which have been falling out of unnecessary alarm since the day of election, and it should carry conviction that this alarm is uncalled for because it gives assurance that there will be no attempt on the part of the Democratic party to support disturbing legislation.

"It is obviously the duty of Republican members to cooperate. The two parties are practically equally divided in Congress. It may be that the Republicans have a majority in the Lower House. The very evenness of division between the two parties is without parallel in our history.

"It represents a legislative victory neither for the Democrats nor the Republicans. It may be well said on one side that the Democrats have made considerable legislative gains.

ELECTION GAINS

"It may be said on the other side that the number of gains of the opposing party are much less than in any mid-term election hitherto; that the Democrats have failed in their objective and that the Republicans have held astonishingly well in the face of the adverse factors temporarily in motion.

"But be this as it may, we are faced with a national situation where the only patriotic solution lies in co-operative action and I welcome it and I am sure my colleagues will welcome it also."

All the talk about coalition control through the votes of radical members of the House and Senate was subdued today by the determination of the responsible leaders to have nothing done that would further disturb the economic situation.

The only kick-back to the statement of the seven Democratic leaders came from certain senators whose authority was discounted by both Democratic and Republican leaders.

SMITH TO HEAD WELFARE BODY

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith has been chosen to direct the unification of unemployment relief efforts here.

Announcement of his appointment as chairman of a committee of 100 to be known as the Welfare Council was made simultaneously with an announcement by officials of the Milbank Memorial Fund that $250,000 will be given to the emergency employment committee headed by Seward Prosser, chairman of the Bankers' Trust Company.

The fund was established in 1905 by Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson as a memorial to her father and mother. It had an original endowment of $10,000,000. Its purpose is the improvement of the physical, mental and moral condition of humanity.

The committee headed by Smith will not raise funds but will cooperate with funds raising committees.

CURTIS BACKS SENATE SPY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.) Vice President Curtis said today that his part in the stationing of an under-cover prohibition agent in the Senate Office Building several months ago was a minor one, but he thought "the right thing was done."

"Several complaints were made that a bootlegger was using the Senate Office Building," Curtis said. "I was told about it and said I thought the thing to do, if he was violating the law, was to catch him. My opinion was asked about placing him in the building and I also said that was all right if it was necessary to stop the law violations."

Mr. Curtis said he did not sign an order to place the agent in the building.

PINCHOT'S LEAD NOW 81,311

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The unofficial plurality of Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot over John M. Hemphill, his Democratic-Liberal opponent in last Tuesday's election, stands at 81,311.

The official count has been completed in some counties and is continuing in many others. In Philadelphia, the official canvass up to the Twenty-first Ward has been completed. The official count gave Hemphill a net gain of 8,139 over the unofficial figures. This discrepancy is not taken into account in the unofficial plurality of 81,311 of Pinchot, as the Philadelphia count has not yet been completed.

The official count in Lackawanna County gave Pinchot a majority of 3,729.

ANTI-DRY GROUP CLAIMS BIG GAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Claims that 144 of its 160 indorsed candidates for Senate, the House and governorships were elected Tuesday were made today by the National Constitutional Convention which convenes here December 8. Dr. F. W. Buck, executive secretary of the convention, said it was very "hard to understand how the Anti-Saloon league can be satisfied with results like this."

"The 144 candidates elected does not by any means," he said, "represent the total number favoring modification in the House and Senate, as many were elected in districts where we did not indorse because both candidates were equally favorable to us."

The gain of the anti-prohibitionists was greater, he said, than that of the Democrats.

The purpose of the convention's meeting in December, Dr. Buck said, was to find a sane and rational solution of the most dangerous social and economic problem this generation has been called upon to face—"unenforceable prohibition."

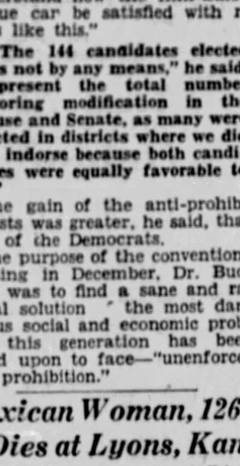
Coolidge Urges Millions More to Join Red Cross

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The annual membership roll call of the American Red Cross, about to begin, will be actively conducted in 16,000 communities. The present adult membership of 4,130,000 does not provide sufficient funds to meet the local, national and international demands that are made for relief.



Calvin Coolidge

There should be several more million members. People should join not only because the work needs financial support, but because of the individual and public benefit that accrues from an extended membership in the greatest charity in the world. It has a charter from the Congress and the President of the United States is its ex-officio president. So many of its officers serve without compensation that its funds are almost entirely used to relieve temporary human suffering.

Fire, flood, hurricane, earthquake or any other catastrophe calls it into immediate action anywhere on earth. We have no greater instrument of peace, friendship, and good will devoted to humanity without regard to race or creed. No more practical and far-reaching philanthropy was ever created. Nothing better represents the true spirit of the people. In the great response to the call for membership will be revealed the moral power of this country.

Play Sunday Ball Outside City, Magistrate Advises

Advising them to play Sunday football outside the city limits where the Sunday Blue Laws are not enforced, Magistrate Thomas Jones, in Morals Court, today fined two youths $3 each for engaging in Sunday sports.

The boys are James Creedon, 18, of 1831 Beaver avenue, and William Johnston, 21, of 67 Melrose street. They were arrested yesterday afternoon at Melrose and Irwin avenue by North Side police during a practice game. Other youths similarly engaged escaped. Magistrate Jones advised the defendants to "go out of town" to participate in future Sunday football.

DOVER, O., Nov. 10.—Dover's four theaters operated yesterday afternoon without interference, the first time that Dover has had Sunday movies since last May 25, when police, under direction of Mayor W. R. Stucky, suppressed a performance at the Bexley Theater.

It is believed that the referendum on a city ordinance passed to prohibit Sunday theatricals, will deter such action. The ordinance was disapproved last Tuesday, 2,401 to 811.

DRYS TO FIGHT FOR FUND INCREASE

Appropriation Boost Sought To Enforce Prohibition As Reverses Spread Alarm

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Prohibition will flare forth in the coming session of Congress with a raging battle over appropriations for enforcement, it was made known today.

Organized drys announced a drive to demand huge increases to keep the prohibition machine in action and will seek an additional army of men in the effort to still the mounting criticism against enforcement methods.

Prohibition, on the offensive under the whip-cracking of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, Anti-Saloon League generalissimo, turned definitely on the defensive at the last session.

DEMAND 500 MORE MEN

Even stalwart drys recognise that present enforcement methods, even as revised under the Hoover Administration, have not remedied the situation.

The first move for a bigger dry machine came from the prohibition and public morals board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which today demanded that the 500 additional men and increase of $2,200,000 in the allotment for the prohibition bureau asked by Director Amos W. Woodcock be granted.

At the same time they urged President Hoover to approve the increased appropriation.

Dr. James M. Doran, head of the alcohol division in the Treasury Department, also wants more money to carry on his work of issuing and inspecting permits. The government now spends $40,000,000 yearly in dry law enforcement.

ANTI-DRYS TO FIGHT

Encouraged by the gain made by the anti-prohibition cause in Tuesday's elections, the anti-dry bloc in the House is determined to fight any further increases in funds for enforcement on the ground that the remedy is not larger appropriations, but repeal or modification of the law.

The Methodist Episcopal church group contended in its demand for more funds and men that President Hoover was elected by dry votes and his administration will stand or fall according to the results obtained by him in enforcing prohibition. The statement said:

"There is no blinking at the fact that the Hoover administration will rise or fall with the success of its efforts to enforce the prohibition law and that success should be fully apparent within the next year or 18 months."

FOUR 'NUMBERS' SUSPECTS HELD

Four alleged "numbers writers," including two 16-year-old boys, were arrested today by city detectives and lodged in East End Police Station pending hearings tomorrow on suspicious person charges, police reported.

The suspects said they were Frank Auclina, 16 of 511 McDonald street; Frank Cecere, 16, of 509 Lenora street; Louis Fedesco, 28, of 6318½ Meadow street, and Gus Gorgetson, 26, of 5910 Phillips avenue, Squirrel Hill.

Detectives said they arrested the two boys at Bellefield and Fifth avenues, where they were allegedly "picking up numbers" to turn over to Georgetson and Fedesco. The men were implicated by the boys and arrested a short time later.

After he admitted "writing numbers," Wally Bobitsky, 23, of 4532 Butler street, was fined $50 or 30 days in the workhouse today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court. He was arrested last night at Seventh avenue and Smithfield street after a quarrel with Wiley Wedmore, Negro, of 2734 Penn avenue. Wedmore testified he had won a 10-cent "numbers" prize entitling him to $54, but Bobitsky failed to pay.

Speeding to a fire in the home of Harry Ripple, 1416 Oak street, last night, the North Braddock fire truck collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Janet McKay, of Superior street, Munhall, it was reported. The woman's mother, Mrs. Catherine Kelly, riding in the rear seat of the machine, suffered injuries to the arms and body.

Firemen were forced to lay 1,200 feet of hose from Ridge avenue to the burning home. The flames were extinguished with only $200 damage.

Damage estimated at $2,000 was caused this morning to the home of John Szkola, 1010 Smithton avenue, North Side, by fire which broke out in the basement of the frame dwelling. The flames gained good headway in the cellar, and by the time the firemen arrived had enveloped the entire house.

Hoefels, of Chicago.

MOVIE STARS SCORE FOX FILM VIEW

Schenck, Mary Pickford Issue Challenge to Clarke in West Coast Theater Row

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Harley M. Clarke's reference to "old-time standards in the motion picture industry" has drawn scathing replies from two members of United Artists in that company's war with Fox-West Coast Theaters, of which Clarke is president.

Hostilities opened Thursday when the distributing company accused the theater chain of being "an arrogant monopoly" and attempting to stifle individual effort.

SCHENCK FACES ISSUE

Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, yesterday accused Clarke of attempting to conceal the real facts and to fool the American public. Schenck said:

"If the new standards which Clarke intimates he is introducing into motion pictures mean just such elusiveness and evasiveness and the concealment of facts from the American public, then we of the United Artists are more than content to stay with the old standards that have proved themselves clean, decent, constructive and have kept faith with the public."

Mary Pickford said:

"Harley Clarke has issued a statement defending himself and his organization and says that 'apparently United Artists believes that the old time standards still prevail in the motion picture industry.' We do believe that and we hope that the old time standards are never driven out of motion pictures by such forces as Clarke and his Fox West Coast theaters.

"Those old time standards made the motion picture industry an art that gives pleasure and inspiration to hundreds of millions all over the world every day. Those same standards made the motion picture industry, in less than 20 years, the fifth largest in the country.

MENACE TO INDUSTRY

"If it were not for those healthy, constructive, old standards the Fox West Coast Theaters would not be in business today. The motion pictures would not count for anything and Clarke and his organization would not be attempting to control and exploit and cheapen them. Clarke insists his business group is not a monopoly and does not control a dangerously large percentage of the theaters in California, Oregon and Washington. But the United Artists would not be challenging its greediness today if Fox West Coast Theaters were not a monopoly and a danger to motion pictures. We are not fighting a shadow. We know that the Fox West Coast Theaters are a menace to better pictures."

STARS IN 'FRONT LINE'

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—(Universal.)—Al Jolson and Eddie Cantor, United Artists stars, have been drafted for duty in the front line trenches in that company's war with Fox West Coast Theaters.

The two comedians are to make personal appearances tomorrow night at the Garfield Theater in Alhambra, where a United Artists' picture is playing.

It is probable that other United Artists' stars and owner-members will make personal appearance tours of Pacific Coast cities in an effort to break what they term the Fox West Coast Theater monopoly.

Holdup Nets $300 At Ice Men's Club

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Three armed bandits escaped with nearly $300 early today, after lining their victims against the wall in the Riverview Heights Ice Men's Club, at Gloucester near here.

County police have not learned the exact details of the robbery due to the reluctance of the victims to talk.

7 Killed as Chinese Planes Bomb City

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Seven persons were killed when Chinese Nationalist airplanes bombed the city of Taiyuan-Fu in Shansi Province, according to a Peiping dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph today.

Meteor Swarm Coasting Towards Earth

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Coasting earthward down a 17-degree slope in space, the thickest swarm of meteors known to science is nearing this planet.

So vast are its numbers that, although its main section is still three years distant, its advance guards to the number of a dozen or more an hour are expected to appear in the early morning next Saturday, as well as for a few days before and after this.

The swarm is the Leonid meteors, known for 1,000 years past, visiting earth three times a century, and occasionally filling the sky with a rain of fire.

Astronomers plan to count the outriders of this meteoric host from November 11 to 17, because the numbers seen may indicate whether the Leonids are likely to put on another great fireworks display in 1933, or to throw a dud, as they have done more than once in the past.

A call for volunteers to assist in watching both Saturday and Sunday morning was issued here today—volunteers from the lay public, hardy persons willing to spend the night out in the cold, to strain their eyes for hours to see perhaps a few dozen meteors, and to spend their own money for a two-cent stamp to inform science of the results.

BLISS, HERO OF FOUR WARS, HONORED IN DEATH

Amelia Earhart, Putnam Get Marriage License

FLIER DENIES WEDDING EXPLORER

Permit Given Saturday, With Waiver of 5-Day Intention Clause, in Connecticut

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean, and George Palmer Putnam, publisher and explorer, have obtained a license to wed, but whether the ceremony has been performed was a mystery to their friends today.

Henry P. Bailey, town clerk of Noank, Conn., and Probate Judge Arthur P. Anderson concurred in statements that a license had been issued to the couple, and Judge Anderson said he had waived the five-day notice of intention required by Connecticut law. Bailey said the license was issued Saturday.

Miss Earhart, who was in Washington today, denied she and Palmer were married.

VISITING HIS MOTHER

She and Palmer were at the summer home of Mrs. Frances Palmer, the publisher's mother, at Noank, Saturday. They left together in an automobile after inquiring concerning train schedules from New London, Conn.

Miss Earhart later flew to Washington. She said Putnam had not accompanied her nor could he be located at his apartment in Sutton place, New York.

She said she went to Noank frequently, but insisted she knew nothing of a marriage license being issued there Saturday to her and Putnam.

"Some time in the next 50 years I may be married," she said.

Business in connection with her position as vice president of the New York, Philadelphia and Washington Airway Corporation took her to Washington, she said.

PUTNAM DIVORCED

Putnam met Miss Earhart when he had charge of arrangements for her flight from Trepassey, N. F., to Burryport, Wales, June 17, 1928. Miss Earhart's pilot was the late Wilmer Stultz, with Lou Gordon as mechanic.

Miss Earhart became interested in aviation and learned to fly while doing social work in Boston. She was the first woman to obtain a pilot's certificate from the National Aeronautics Association, and at one time held the women's altitude record for a flight of 14,000 feet.

Putnam's previous marriage to Mrs. Dorothy Binney Putnam was ended by divorce in Reno, Nev., in December, 1929.

TRIBUTE PAID BY ARMY CHIEFS

Veteran of 4 Campaigns Dies In Hospital in 77th Year; To Be Buried in Arlington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Gen. Tasker Howard Bliss, 76, war-time chief of staff, is dead, ending more than half a century in service of his country.

The soldier-statesman succumbed early Sunday morning to an intestinal illness, several days after physicians at Walter Reed Hospital had given up hope of saving him.

He will be buried Wednesday at Arlington, escorted to the grave by a group of distinguished soldiers and sailors.

Gen. John J. Pershing, Admiral W. S. Benson, Admiral Hugh Rodman, Maj. Gens. Hugh L. Scott and William Crozier, and Brig. Gen. Stanley D. Emrick, together with Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, and Col. E. M. House will be his honorary pallbearers.

GLOWING TRIBUTES

Funeral services probably will be held in Washington Cathedral.

His death brought immediate tributes from military leaders.

Gen. Pershing said:

"He lived his life in fulfillment of the motto of his alma mater (West Point): 'Duty—honor-country.'"

Secretary of War Hurley:

"America loses one of the most loyal and able public servants."

Gen. Charles P. Summerwall, present chief of staff:

"His career transcended the purely military sphere, but in a long, distinguished and useful life he gave of himself devotedly and effectively to the military service. We mourn the passing of an inspiring chief and a noble soul."

Former Secretary Baker, with whom Bliss served:

"A great American, a great servant and citizen of the world."

IN 4 CAMPAIGNS

Gen. Bliss served in four campaigns and performed important civilian duties for the government both at home and abroad. Among them was his post on the supreme war council and on the American peace commission as personal representative of President Wilson. His death leaves Col. House the only American survivor of the war council.

His career took him through the Spanish-American War, the Porto Rican campaign, the Philippines disorders and the Mexican expedition.

He was an instructor at West Point for a time and a professor at the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., and later president of the Army War College here. For a time he was military attache in the American embassy at Madrid, and after the Spanish-American War served as collector of customs of Havana.

HONORED ABROAD

Among honors which came to him were the Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George of Great Britain, the grand cordon of the Crown of Belgium, the grand cordon of the Rising Sun of Japan, the Legion of Honor from France, and the United States distinguished service medal.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Eleanora Emma Bliss; a son, Col. Edward Goring Bliss, and a daughter, Mrs. Adolph Knopf, of New Haven, Conn. He was born in Lewisburg, Pa.

DIAMOND NEAR COLLAPSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Jack (Legs) Diamond, bullet-pierced racketeer, was reported near collapse today in City Hospital on Welfare Island. His resistance, which has carried him along for many days, finally has given away. Septic conditions have appeared, with resultant high temperature, and his recovery, at one time apparently assured, now was reported doubtful.

Detectives who visit him daily, hoping to get some clues from him as to the persons who shot him down in a midtown hotel on October 12, say the gangster is obviously on the down grade. So far he has refused to give the authorities any aid.

HAWKS LOWERS HAVANA TIME

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(Universal.)—Capt. Frank Hawks, "taking it easy" at an average speed of 190 miles an hour, wrote another brilliant achievement in his record by flying from Havana to New York in eight hours and 45 minutes.

This time was even better than the record he hung up on his flight from New York to Havana, which he completed in nine hours and 21 minutes.

Capt. Hawks carried with him letters to Arthur Brisbane, editor and writer, and to Mayor Walker from Dr. Ricardo R. Lancis, editor of El Mundo, a Havana newspaper.

SAVAGES SLAY MISSIONARIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Two American missionaries and the infant daughter of one of them have been killed in the interior of Brazil, presumably by savage Indians among whom they worked, according to word received today by the Inland South American Union.

The missionaries were Arthur S. Tylee, Worcester, Mass., and Miss Ethel Kratz, 26, Chicago nurse. Tylee's two-year-old daughter also met her death, the report stated. Mrs. Tylee was wounded, but is recovering.

The three Americans were killed at an isolated station near Juruena.

The inhabitants are said to be Brabilians, a savage race who go unclothed and hunt with poisoned arrows.

3-GUN WILSON AFTER BIG ONES

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 10.—Harold D. (Three Gun) Wilson, prohibition director of Delaware, and of "Amen Corner" raid fame in Pittsburgh, intends to wage a campaign against Wilmington's bootleggers, he declared in an address last night in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church here.

Wilson said:

"I am going after the 'big fellow' as well as the 'small fry.'

When the limelight has been switched on the public will know "Who's who in Wilmington's Bootleggery," Wilson asserted.

Jealous bootleggers "who did not love their country but love rival bootleggers less" were disclosed as tipping off the prohibition agents to liquor activities. Twenty-four persons were arrested in a series of raids Saturday night, but they were the "small fry," according to Wilson. Two weeks ago Wilson raided the Wilmington Democratic Club.

IRISH ROSE SUIT LOST BY AUTHOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," lost an appeal today in her $3,000,000 plagiarism suit against Universal Pictures Corporation, in which a court had rendered a decision against her in May, 1929.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously upheld a decision dismissing the action, which had been directed against the Universal Corporation and its head, Carl Laemmle, and Henry Pollard, who, Miss Nichols had charged, had rewritten her plot into "The Cohens and the Kellys."

Judge Learned Hand, in writing the opinion, said:

"We found that the plot of the second play was too different to infringe upon the other."

AMMEL SIGHTED ON PANAMA HOP

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Tropical radio station here reported today that the United Fruit Company's steamer Tivives sighted Capt. Roy W. Ammel's Panama-bound plane off the northeast coast of Honduras at 9:25 eastern standard time today, nearly 20 hours after he had taken off yesterday from New York.

Ammel, Chicago stock broker, is flying alone. He had no radio set. Ammel made his flight in a low-wing Lockheed-Explorer monoplane. The plane is yellow with blue trim and bears the name Blue Flash. Its only seat is far astern in the fuselage.

AVIATRIX READY FOR CUBA HOP

Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian woman pilot, made her debut to aviation fans at the Pittsburgh-Butler airport yesterday and today planned to give her "baby" monoplane a last going over preparatory to the start tomorrow of her Pittsburgh to Havana flight.

The diminutive aviatrix, who has distinguished herself in flights from her native land to this country and by record-breaking transcontinental hops, anticipates more flying laurels in a one-stop flight from this city to Havana.

Mrs. Keith Miller treated nearly 3,000 air fans at the Pittsburgh-Butler airport yesterday to an exhibition of stunt flying in which a number of young women students of the Penn School of Aviation supplemented with a brilliant display of their flying technique.

He was a former president of the Orange board of education and a former superintendent of the Sunday school of the North Orange Baptist Church here.

Ends Life to 'Join' Stars Like Caruso

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—For 27 years Tommy West, a comedian, had dreamed of some day seeing his name coupled with the great stars before he turned on the gas and took his life in the kitchen of his home. He wrote his own notice for a theatrical magazine. After carefully listing the parts he had portrayed and the circuits he had played, he wrote:

"And if anybody wants to know where I am, just tell them that at last I'm with the big timers—Bert Williams, Jack Donahue, Caruso and the rest of the crowd."

REDDINGAN, Cal., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—A diversion dam supplying water to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's power plant No. 2 at Hat Creek, 60 miles northeast of here, was blown up with dynamite early today. Young Lawyers Advised To Wed Own Secretaries

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Young lawyers-to-be were advised by Dr. Edward Lyman Cornell, of Northwestern University medical school, today to choose good secretaries and then marry them.

A secretary, Dr. Cornell told students, should have all the qualifications of a god wife, and, so the students would know the qualities of a good wife, he enumerated them:

"Health—Don't marry a girl who can't run 100 yards close to 13 seconds. Any faster may not be desirable on some occasions. Much slower is not a sign of health.

"Jealousy—A professional man cannot afford a jealous secretary or wife.

"Thrift—Like doctors, most lawyers at the beginning are penniless and cannot afford an extravagant life.

"Education — College degree preferred.

"Social Training—Tact. Good taste in dress and home management, and the ability to entertain are very essential.

"Business Training—This is most essential as most professional men are poor bookkeepers.

"Children—She should be willing to be a mother to children, as otherwise the country will suffer through depletion of its best types.

"Freedom to Work—She should be willing to allow her husband to attend meetings and conferences at any time.

"Beauty—She should have a good appearance and be smart enough to maintain her good looks."

SEEK 18 SAILORS LOST IN GALE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—While a waning storm tossed wreckage of the lumber schooner Brooklyn at their feet, Coast Guardsmen searched today for the bodies of 18 men who went down with the little wooden craft Saturday on Humboldt bar in Northern California.

Meantime a determined crew of 41 refused all offers to be taken off the creaking Richfield oil tanker Tamalpais, aground since Thursday night on Pescadero reef, 50 miles south of San Francisco. Six wreckers aboard and three tugs waited for heavy seas to subside before beginning salvage attempts. A wrecking boat was ready to take the crew ashore in case of emergency.

A third ship caught in the same storm which wrecked the Brooklyn, was in tow of the Coast Guard cutter Sotoma. This helpless vessel, the once proud Navy cruiser Missoula, with 11 men aboard, broke loose off the Oregon coast from the cable with which the tug Roosevelt was towing her to San Francisco to be scrapped.

29 Rescued From Wrecked Steamer

SCARFSKERRY, Caithness, Scotland, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Every man of the crew of 29 in the steamer Linkmoor was hauled to safety in a breeches buoy today as the vessel was pounded to pieces off Scarfskerry Point in a blinding rain and hail storm.

Dynamite Wrecks School at Salina

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The grade school building at Salina, Westmoreland County, was badly damaged by an explosion last night. State police expressed the belief the explosion was caused by dynamite set off in the basement of the building—a two-story eight-room frame structure.

Mississippi Valley Seeks Hoover Aid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—President Hoover was urged today by the Mississippi Valley Association to recommend increased appropriations for development of the Mississippi waterway.

Church Floor Falls, 1 Killed, 23 Hurt

OVIEDO, Spain, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—One person was killed, 23 were seriously injured and 50 others slightly hurt today when the floor of a church at Celorio collapsed while services were in progress.

Church Survey Fails to Fix War Blame

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Twelve years after the Armistice a group of churchmen, educators and business men canvassed by the Federal Council of Churches fail to agree as to who was responsible for the World War.

The question: "Do you believe that Germany and her allies were solely responsible for causing the war?" brought 364 answers of "no," 48 of "yes," and 10 expressing doubt.

The last query in the questionnaire was:

"In the light of all evidence now available do you think the United States acted wisely in entering the war against Germany?"

A total of 274 persons replied "yes," 80 "no," and 70 said they were in doubt.

FLORIDA STORM FATAL TO 5

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A courteous, white-capped sea today hid the fate of five men, who disappeared as the barge Northern Light sank in a storm that harassed shipping along a wide expanse of the Florida east coast. Search by air was ordered continued in the dimming hope of effecting a rescue.

Bracked by a raging surf the tug Messenger was in a precarious position near Jupiter while two other vessels crippled by the pounding breakers proceeded northward at greatly reduced speeds.

The Northern Light, en route from Tampa, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C., with a cargo of phosphate in tow of the tug Ontario, of Mobile, went down off Carys Fort reef yesterday. The Ontario picked up only J. Stewart, of the barge's crew of six.

POLICE HUNTING 'HUGGER'

Dravosburg police, members of the volunteer fire department and citizens today were searching for a young man who for the last three nights has been terrorizing girl of the community by hugging them as they walked in dark streets. Several girls reported that the young man attempted to hug them or frighten them.

The hugger was first seen Friday night. He was reported abroad again Saturday night and Sunday night. Chief C. A. Livingston, of the police department, is directing the search for the man.

Police believe the youth, described as being tall, slender, and wearing a dark brown suit, to be the same man who attacked and severely beat a man residing in the South Hills section of Dravosburg last Tuesday night.

RELIGION HELD AID TO PEACE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Seeing "more gloom and cynicism in regard to the possibility of peace" now than at any time since 1918, Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of New York, today told the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches that religious principles should prove a partial panacea for the world's unrest.

Dr. Atkinson, general secretary of the Alliance, at the opening session of the organization's good will conference, attributed a portion of the "fear of the spread of Communism" to "deplorable economic conditions which exist in almost every country."

Delegates to the conference, which Catholics, Protestants, and Jews attended, also heard addresses by the Rev. William P. Merrill, of New York, president of the Alliance, and the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, of the Memorial Church of St. Paul at Overbrook, Pa.

FASCISTS LOSE IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Nov. 10. — (AP.) — Fascism, heralded as a rising force in Austria, was dealt a telling blow in national general elections Sunday. On the face of incomplete returns it appeared that Fascists had not gained a single seat and would be without representation in the new National-rat.

Although returns on some mandates are still outstanding, the parilamentary elections seemed otherwise to have left the situation much as it was before, with the Socialists gaining slightly, and the old Anti-Socialist coalition group a slight loser, but not sufficiently so to destroy their majority if the coalition should be renewed.

The Fascists did not seem to take their defeat to heart. Their leader, Prince Von Starhemberg, announced that he would retain his portfolio as minister of interior, even though without a mandate.

Boser, Arthur H. Wilharm, Oakley W. Hirshberth, Carl A. Daub, Harry Kramer, M. M. Cahill, Thomas B. Carmichael and Dr. C. P. Leininger.

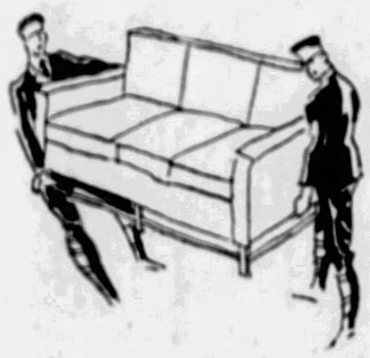
Home Furnishers and Interior Decorators

A $157,000 Disposal of Furniture and Floor Coverings



1/3 and 1/2 OFF

THE sum involved and the extent of the discounts reveal the extraordinary nature of the occasion. Fully 50% of our entire floor stock of furniture and floor coverings —this season's goods—is embraced in this disposal.

It is the most sweeping and radical clearance of staple merchandise that this store has ever made, and the opportunities it offers to Pittsburgh homes cannot be overstressed.

Every section of our furniture and carpet divisions is included, from the new Stylthrift Section (of exceedingly popular prices) to our exclusive Decorating Studios, embracing individual suites and occasional furniture.

Our purpose is to reduce stocks substantially and immediately, to make room for Christmas moves and rearrangements. We have gone about the matter more drastically than ever before, because our stocks are large and because we realize that extraordinary measures are necessary at this time to achieve the desired results.

The offerings will be designated by large 1/3 off and 1/2 off tickets and customers will make their own deductions from the regular marked prices. These discounts will be withdrawn just as soon as the necessary clearance is effected, so that immediate action is urgent.

With present regular furniture prices the lowest in 15 years, 33⅓% or 50% off these prices puts Horne quality furniture on a basis that people are going to do something about it, and do it quickly.

Deferred Payments may be arranged during this Sale on both Furniture and Floor Coverings.

Pittsburgh Girls Greet Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady

By The Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady.

Dear Little Girls:

My announcement in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph yesterday created a lot of excitement, didn't it? Well, you don't know just how much of a flurry it did make and you really couldn't estimate it unless you saw the stacks of letters the mail man left on my desk this morning. I want to thank all of my little friends for the cute letters they sent me so soon.

That darling "Tickletoes" doll of mine is going to be the most popular thing in Pittsburgh for the next seven weeks. "Tickletoes," you know, is the wonder doll that I have brought here for all the little girls of Pittsburgh who want her and who do just what I ask them to between now and Christmas.

"Tickletoes" is more than a wonder doll. She's just about as big a doll as you would want to play with and take care of. Now, in the first place "Tickletoes" has flexible rubber legs and rubber arms—different than any other doll you ever saw. And here is the interesting feature about "Tickletoes." She has three voices. Squeeze her right leg at the knee and you hear one voice. Squeeze the left leg and you hear the second voice and turn her over she'll cry just like a baby. And what wonderful eyes—they roll from side to side and they go to sleep. Yes, "Tickletoes" is almost human and you'll treat her just as if she were a little sister.

The Sun-Telegraph assured me again today that it had searched the doll makers' shops of Europe and America looking for something new, unique and lovable to offer the children of Pittsburgh for Christmas and they had almost given up hope of getting anything really new until they saw my wonder doll—"Tickletoes"—happy, smiling, sparkling-eyed dollies that you will love the minute you set your eyes on them. I hope the supply will last until Christmas.

Now, little girls, if you want a wonder "Tickletoes" all for your own write me a little note, giving your name and address and I will tell you by return mail how you can be made the happiest girl in Pittsburgh. If you can't write ask mother or "Dad" to do it for you, but don't wait until all of my "Tickletoes" dollies are gone. Write today. Address your letter to the SUN-TELEGRAPH DOLL LADY, PITTSBURGH, PA., and you'll get a letter telling just what to do to get one of my dollies for Christmas—or before Christmas if you want it.

Goodby for today but don't forget to write your letter to the

Pickpocket Steals $40,000 Diamonds

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Diamonds valued at $40,000 were stolen from Morris Feinberg, Los Angeles diamond broker, by a pickpocket in Union Station here as he alighted from a train today. The jewelry was in a wallet Feinberg carried in an inside pocket. They were not insured, Feinberg said.

Burglars Loot Two Homes at Knoxville

The homes of James Boffey, 272 Suncrest street, and Dr. J. E. Stewart, 216 Suncrest street, Knoxville, were robbed last night without disturbing the families. At Boffey's a small amount of money was taken from a hall stand. From the Stewart home the thieves escaped with $15 in cash and two fountain pens.

Entrance was made by opening rear windows at both places.

U. S. Court Convenes For November Term

Marjorie Rambeau Chosen To Play Opposite Wallace Beery

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.

The star of Marjorie Rambeau continues to climb toward its former orbit.

After two fine performances in "Her Man" at Pathe and in "Min and Bill" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the former stage actress has been chosen to play opposite Wallace Beery in "The Secret Six."

This picture promises well as Frances Marion, author of "The Big House," has written it and George Hill will direct. Like "The Big House," it is to be a Cosmopolitan production.

Beery plays a killer in a slaughter house who becomes a political boss.

ANOTHER FARCE

It is the rage in Hollywood now for the stars to have themselves immortalized in stone. Some of the busts are straight likenesses, while others are futuristic impressions, or caricatures.

Pathe announces a farce comedy by Walter de Leon on its new program.

Its original title, "This Marriage Business," has been changed to "Lonely Wives."

At any rate, the studio intends to get Edward Everett Horton for the picture if he can be obtained. They also would like Marie Dressler, the optimist.

DO YOU NOW that Lew Ayres, the boy in "All Quiet on the Western Front," has written two ballads, "I've Found the Girl" and "The Love in Your Eyes."

BITES THE DUST

The somewhat hectic career of Rex Lease at Tiffany is about over.

All further plans for starring him in western pictures have been abandoned, and the actor shortly will go into vaudeville.

Fortunately, Tiffany has another string to its bow in Ken Maynard, who was signed a short time ago.

Ken Maynard

Rex is a good actor, but he has a genius for getting on the front pages.

PROGRAMS CHANGE ON LOCAL STAGES

Symphony No. 2 ..... Schumann
Symphonic Variations, "Enigma" ..... Elgar
"In Seinem Land," from Lohengrin ..... Wagner
Rhapsody, "Espana" ..... Chabrier

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society gave its first concert of the current season in Syria Mosque last night, fulfilling the earliest promise of its president, "We are here and we mean to stay!" There can no longer be any doubt of the popularity of these concerts among our music lovers, and with fewer visits from other orchestras, this seems the moment when we should rally more than ever to the support of the Pittsburgh Orchestra.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The program was one of the most wisely chosen in the history of the orchestra; even the encores permitted the soloist, were well timed and delivered with fine dignity. The jolly spirit of Brahms' overture comes out of the student songs used as themes, not from the composer's heavy-handed weavings, which cannot destroy the breeziness of those songs. This work always has seemed to be an excellent example to American writers of the possibilities in using our popular tunes and in keeping them above the commonplace.

Schumann's C Major Symphony has many an arid spot and the orchestra was not able to enrich those barren stretches with either brilliance of tone or technique. The scherzo is masterly writing and showed at once the improvement in the orchestra's ensemble and some of its original weak points. Elgar's "Enigma" Variations were in the main witty, and certainly neither the conductor nor his players were ever behind the composer in comprehending his intentions. It was the best playing of the evening and decidedly complimentary in every way to the orchestra. The "Espana" was merely the happy ending.

Eugene Goossens conducted better than ever before in this town. It would take more than the number of rehearsals permitted him to whip that symphony into shape, but his Brahms and especially the Elgar lay very near his heart and he gave us fine readings of both. His accompaniments for the singer were notable. The new principals in the orchestra were cordially welcomed. The violas finally had their inning and lent luscious tone.

Edward Johnson sang four tenor arias from his operatic repertory, and it was a joy indeed to hear so fine an artist. We must overlook the fact that it is not the greatest voice of the generation, but rejoice that we have here a singer of unusual intelligence and musicianship, who sings well and can so satisfactorily present such varied styles of music. He knows the value of climax, illustrated in both the Louise and Lohengrin arias, and in both encores, the Flower song from Carmen and the popular I Pagliacci lament, gave excellent account of his vocal powers. The audience would doubtless welcome his return.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But which you knew all the time.)

That the thud of a falling body and the hiss of a cat can still be heard at the famous Octagon House, Washington, by imaginative people, all because Betty Taylor, a niece of the first owner of the dwelling, tripped to death over a black cat while hastening to meet her lover.

That only members of the Cabinet, the Vice President and the Speaker of the House are privileged to entertain the Pres at dinner.

That Shakespeare anticipated radio broadcasting long before it was invented. See the pages of his "The Tempest."

That celery is a splendid remedy for rheumatism. Really!

That the Cotton Club in Harlem every morning feeds over 250 members of the unemployed free. That cabaret, incidentally, has contributed more coin to charity than any other in the world!

That in the postage stamp collection of a Mr. Hind, of Utica, there is one valued at $35,000—outbidding the King of England.

That the leading baby specialist of Los Angeles is Dr. Stork.

That while O. N. T. on spools of thread means Our New Thread—backwards it stands for Try No Other.

That the Vanishing American as applied to native Indians is a myth; the population now being greater than in pre-Colonial days.

That the year 1492 is distinguished in Spain not so much because Columbus discovered a new world, but because that year marked the termination of Mohammedan power in Spain, after eight centuries.

That local apple juice stands also feature 5c movies.

That when Wm. the Conqueror landed near Hastings, he accidentally fell, striking both hands upon the ground. His followers cried: "Bad omen." He reassured them by saying that it was a sign he had taken possession of England—and hush mah mouth if the old gazumper didn't!

That sugar was almost unknown in Yurrup until the Crusades.

That the Locrians admitted only two laws in 200 years, because he who proposed to establish or change one had to come with a halter around his neck, and was strangled if his law was rejected, which is why Volstead should give thanks he wasn't a Locrain.

That the ropes with which the slaves hauled timbers for the fleet at Carthage were partly made of the hair of patriotic women.

That when Napoleon was exiled to St. Helena he wasn't as lonesome as you think. His house contained 51 persons, and did they carry on! (You do not have to read this, but I have to write it.)

That Queen Elizabeth was the first femme to wear silk stockings, but it took a Ziegfeld gal to make 'em popular.

That, according to the Daily Sketch of Oct. 27, "whoopee!" is Americanese for "a night out." I thought that word was over 300 years old, Dr. Visetelly, and Bill Shakespeare coined it. Huh! England is where Shakespeare was born and they never heard of whoopee until lately. Is your face red?

That the U. S. Indian, when first discovered, was an oyster fiend.

That the famous picture, "The Blue Boy," was painted by Gainsborough to disprove a statement made by Sir Joshua Reynolds, another great artist, that blue should not be massed in a picture.

That Alex Pope ridiculed and satirized Lady Montague in a book because she laughed at him when he tried to make a pass at her.

That people can carry packages into the capitol at Washington without being stopped, but must have them inspected on the way out. (Verily, Johnny, you may leave the room.)

That it is much better to be barred than bored.

That a broker on Wall Street walked off the exchange floor, on out into the street. He went up to a lad selling apples on the corner, asked for two, and paid a dime. Then he looked up at the apple peddler and said: "Hullo, Bill! I hope you're doing better out here."

That in New Guinea, native women are compelled to have a tattoed band around the leg for each marriage.

That men are more vain that women—take that from one of Manhattan's leading photographers of celebrities.

That a $3,000 piano is buried in the second floor walls of the Level Club on W. 73rd St., because when the place was built opposing labor unions refused to move it—so it was walled.

That once a year the King of Spain, as a symbol of humility, has to wash the tootsies of five of his humblest subjects.

That Izzy Elinson reports the local Scots aren't buying apples from the unemployed because they can't be worn in their lapels.

That wedding rings are worn on the left paw to symbolize subjection. Now try to think of two wives who do.

That in Paris the subways close down at 11 p. m. And those in Berlin run so slow you can get on and off while they're going.

That the N. Y. Tuberculosis Health Ass'n. is issuing propaganda saying if people refrained from kissing anyone for the next ten years it would result in a 50 per cent reduction of the mortality rate.

And that columnists are people who really think that their stuff is the first thing the readers turn to in the paper.

MELODRAMA FEATURE OF SCREEN BILL IN HARRIS

"One Night at Susie's," melodrama, is being presented on the Harris screen. It recently was the feature in the Enright. The story has to do with a lady, who is the friend of crooks, and a boy and girl, who finally arrive at the happy clinch after he writes plays and serves time in Sing Sing and she become a bigtime actress.

Helen Ware does an interesting piece of work as Susie. Billie Dove is the heroine and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is the hero.

Short subjects on the bill include a slapstick comedy, in which Charlie Murray and George Sidney are seen as a couple of firemen. It is funny.

Election Rip-Roars. Torch Parades Gone. 'In Old Kentucky,' Lombardo Peeved.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—While the astounding capacity of radio as a medium of communication is welcomed throughout the nation we cannot dislodge the belief that the microphone has robbed American life of much of its old-time clamour and picturesqueness.

Louis Reid

One needs only to consider election night as a case in point. Before the advent of radio, election night was an occasion for general whoopee. It brought forth the carnival spirit. An air of zip and gusto hovered over the republic. Streets, hotels and theaters were crowded with sightseers and revelers all bent on airing their emotions, no matter who was victorious at the polls.

Radio Has Put End to Election Rip-Roaring

Today, because of radio, election night is not essentially different from any other night. The old rip-roaring is gone. And even more important the old suspense is gone. In other days people often waited for hours in front of bulletin boards to know the results of election, to know the general trend of the balloting throughout the country.

Today every crossroads knows the outcome early in the evening without venturing from the front parlor. Election night has become a stay-at-home night. And something—boy, my handkerchief!—has definitely gone out of American life.

In another decade, perhaps, radio, through the development of television will have advanced to a state by which it will combine something of the old spirit of election night with its ability to flash promptly and accurately the results of the voting.

And when television finally does come I hope it will revive something of the dash and fire of the old-time election campaigns. You remember—the torch-light parades, the pep rallies, the glowing boola-boola.

Observers of the American scene will some day get around to writing the history of the last decade's politics with special reference to the part radio has played. They, of course, will have to give most of their words to the independence of thought and action which radio has largely effected in the people of the land. There is certainly no doubt of the flexibility of politics today. And it is because the microphone is able to penetrate 13,000,000 parlors, bringing 50,000,000 ear-cuppers into direct contact with the candidates.

Radio, it seems to me, is rapidly abolishing hidebound partisanship. The American people have struck a show-me, oh yeah? attitude regarding politics. They want to hear what the candidate has to say, what kind of personality he possesses. And their decision in what column to mark their "X" rests largely upon the impression he creates first upon their ears, and, secondly upon their minds and hearts.

Kentucky Gave Best Radio Election Drama

Kentucky, because of a new law, was not represented in the election returns last Tuesday night, but Kentucky contributed the most vivid bit of drama to the broadcast of the tabulations. And all because two of her citizens were quick on the trigger—too quick in fact.

It came over the air like a breath of a moonshiners' melodrama, like a bit of Bret Harte in a John Fox setting. For its locale it had the rough-and-tumble name of Stinking Creek. One Brickley berated one Smith for not taking his democracy more seriously. When Smith resented Brickley's remarks, the latter, quicker than you can say "Hatfield-McCoy," shot him dead.

Was that all? Not by a gunshot. Smith's son, standing by, with a bang-bang from the hip, finished Brickley.

Guy Lombardo, jazz maestro, takes issue with this department over a recent comment that the public prefers a fast dance tempo to the slow and languorous rhythms which he offers. This department based his statements on returns from various parts of the country though he hasn't a doubt that the slower style of hoofing is in favor where the bright young people and the not so dull older people of the urban centers gather.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

AFFAIRMING.
Who goes there, in the night,
Across the storm-swept plain?
We are the ghosts of a valiant war—
A million murdered men!

Who goes there, at the dawn,
Across the war-swept plain?
We are the souls of those who swear:
Ye shall not be again!
—Thomas Curtis Clark.

While tonight's radio programs more or less reflect the bright side of the war, if it might be called such, we pause to join Thomas Clark in his poetical declaration against bloodshed—the testimonial of a million murdered men! Most touching of all recitations concerning the war is that of "Taps" to be given by David Ross, the poet - announcer of CBS. This is a part of the WJAS program at 9:30. Massing of the colors at the Tenth Annual Victory Ball of the American Legion in New York is on WCAE from 11:45 to 12:30. Milton J. Cross is to describe the brilliant spectacle, as 73 sets of colors, representing distinguished units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, organized reserves, patriotic societies and foreign nations pass in review before a body headed by Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Bullard, retired. "First call" sounded by a bugler at 11:45 is to clear the floor of dancers and give the cue for the beginning of the broadcast.

WHOSE STADIUM?

Comes a letter from a gentleman who wishes us to withhold his name.

Dear Mr. Martin:

Being a habitual reader of We Now Present and thinking it just fine, as to your choice of radio news and "Ten Best Bets," I feel it a privilege to offer criticism.

Several times you have mentioned "Pitt Stadium" in your column. Since the two Pittsburgh universities, Pitt and Tech, use the bowl alternately the correct name for the Stadium is "The Stadium." Too bad you could not have informed Ted Husing before he broadcast the Pitt-Notre Dame game.

Hoping that this correction will please other readers of your delightful column, and that your success continues, I am

Sincerely yours,
A. R. B.

P. S.—Enclosed find clippings from writings by Harry Keck, Jess Carver and James J. Long, showing where the expression "The Stadium" is used.

QUESTION A DAY:

Does Bob, of "Mary and Bob," playin the CBS Detective Story series?—Ed Roell, Mt. Oliver.

Answer—Yes. These features often use the same cast.

Alwyn Bach, the diction medal winner, is built like "Dutch" Kyth. Tech's fleet halfback, but he has no desire to see or play football.

Like Fred Rodgers, he always wears a flower in his coat lapel.

We expected to meet a quiet fellow with little to say, but Alwyn turned out to be a very animated person. He and Dwight Myer, KDKA plant manager, are close pals.

Alwyn is about 30. He was born and educated in Worcester, Mass. He studied singing when 16 and conducted a church choir of 32 voices when 17. During the World War he served with the 44th Coast Artillery Regiment.

Alwyn resembles Tom Mix.

Robert Braine's new "Concerto in Jazz" for violin is to have its premiere on WCAE tonight at 10:30.

SCIENCE ENDS ACID STOMACH

"I was in a terrible state for years with acid indigestion," writes Mrs. Nellie Grant, of 2301 Quindaro Street, Kansas City, Mo. "After eating I had gas terribly, prior to my stomach I thought I'd die. I would get nervous and sunk and my head would literally ring and buzz. Nothing helped until I tried ADLERIKA. Now I can eat, sleep and enjoy life again."

Just another of thousands who are astounded at the way this new prescription ADLERIKA succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ADLERIKA contains Jayzoar, which is laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain gastric foods. ADLERIKA neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end constipation.

Eat, drink all you want. When your stomach, gas gets, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, sudden gassy headaches and abdominal pains trouble you, take ADLERIKA. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, money refunds money. Get it from your druggist today.

"O Fairest Flower!
No Sooner Blown but Blasted!"

GOOD MUSIC in our country has grown to a glorious blossoming. American orchestras, American musicians now rank with the finest in the world. Shall we continue to nurture and cherish this beautiful flower, or shall we let it dwindle and die under blighting Canned Music poured out by mechanical Robots?

Which do you prefer for the money you pay at the theatre box office? The stirring performance of Living Music played and felt by flesh-and-blood musicians, or a strident din from the throat of a heartless piece of machinery? Shall it be glamor or clamor?

Millions of men and women who love real music are demanding that it shall not be blighted . . . demanding that they shall not be deprived of enjoyment to which they're entitled. These millions are giving force to their demands by enrolling in the Music Defense League. You can swell this chorus of protest by mailing this coupon today. Do it!

GANGSTER GIRL

By JACK LAIT

Annie Wins Admiration of Millionaire's Son

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Polack Annie, red-haired beauty of the Chicago underworld, after killing two gang leaders to avenge the slaying of her sweetheart, goes to New York and appeals for protection to Silk Freeman, a big shot racketeer. He provides an expensive hotel suite for her and tells her he wants her to help him muscle in on the beauty parlor racket and make millions. To his own surprise Silk finds himself falling in love with Anne. He takes her to dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV.

The Hispano-Suiza drew up to the door like a slinking snake—quiet, sure of itself, long, yellow and black, and slithery.

The lackadaisical doorman, hard-boiled to costly cars, twisted the silver-plated handle and yanked open the door. A man was helping a girl out. The girl had red hair and a silver-cloth toque. All this was routine with the hard-boiled doorman. Then he saw the man. He stiffened as though mercury had shot up his spine like it would up the tube of a thermometer. It was the Big Boy—Silk Freeman—B. B. The doorman blithered and blubbered.

Silk Freeman took the elbow of Polack Annie between his thumb and finger and guided her up the few steps. A head-waiter saw him, raised a hand and led the way. If he didn't value his job, he did value the contour of his pan. A small table was hurriedly pushed out on the floor, in front of the "ringside" locations. B. B. was in the house.

A slender, sleek, anaemic man crossed the floor. He was managing the resort, which had a municipal concession, which charged four prices and which paid the rent of a peanut-stand for a palace on public property. He bowed obsequiously.

"Bottle o' wine," said Silk. "And a menu."

"On the fire," said the major domo. "You don't want a menu—write your ticket, Mr. Freeman. We have some especially fine sweetbreads——"

"Boloney," said Silk. "I'll have a Hamburger steak, extra well done, smothered in onions . . . Annie, what's your heart's desire?"

"I could go in a big way for some roast beef—outside cut if it isn't charred—baked potato an' new green peas. Could it be handled?"

"Consider it delivered, miss," said the manager. "The wine is on the way."

Silk Pointed Out

"You get service," commented Annie. "I guess you're no stranger in this burg."

"I get by," assented Silk.

Tommy Gillespie sat across the room. He was the son of Tall Tom Gillespie, teaming contractor, Tammany leader, self-made millionaire.

Tommy had just turned out at college, where he had played tackle on his team and had been prominently named on the all-American. A husky, handsome kid was Tommy. The Irish of his nativity was in his blue eyes and his yellowish, thick, tawny hair—and his brawny shoulders and his undershot jaw.

Beside him sat Alice Schuyder. Her face was narrow and aristocratic. Her forebears had been Hollanders. They had bought acreage on Manhattan Island to raise cows on, and it had turned out to be front-footage to build banks on. She was a snob in her heart and she tolerated everything on earth except Tommy Gillespie. Him she loved.

Their waiter was hovering around, brushing off crumbs, filling water goblets. He sensed the commotion across the room. He glanced across.

"Know who that man is, Mr. Gillespie?" he inquired gingerly, as though fearsome that his impertinence might be misjudged, yet feeling that the occasion demanded expression.

"No," said Tommy. "Who'd he ever kill?"

"Nobody knows—and if anybody does, he won't tell. That's Silk Freeman."

Tommy whistled.

"Oh—yes? So that's the Big Boy, eh?"

"That's Silk Freeman, sir. He doesn't come here often, and—"

Attracted to Annie

"Who," said Tommy, "is the red-headed girl?"

Alice shot him a look. The waiter caught it.

"Who is she? repeated Tommy.

"I—I don't know, Mr. Gillespie. She's new to me. I see most of them, sir, but I've never caught that one before."

"H'm—very interesting looking girl, I should say—"

"Very coarse — dressed in atrocious taste," volunteered Alice.

"I think she's a knockout," said Tommy. "How do those thugs and yeggs get that kind of women?"

The waiter shrugged his shoulders.

"If you saw what I see, sir, you would think human nature a most amazing proposition. Old men get young girls, young men get—or are gotten by—oh, Mr. Gillespie, working in a place like this is a highly eye-opening education. But they tell me this Freeman is rather intriguing, they tell me—"

"I think he's horrible," cut in Miss Schuyder. "He has the face of a criminal."

"Yes, miss," assented the waiter. "He has been accused of questionable practices. He is the head of all the gangsters and racketeers in New York. They tell all sorts of stories about him—"

"If that girl's hair is natural, it's the most devastating red I've ever seen," said Tommy.

"Indeed?" observed Alice quietly. "It seems to have hit you rather hard."

"Don't be silly, Alice. But—it is extraordinary hair."

"It certainly is," clicked Alice, as she brought her teeth together. "Would you mind settling up and taking me home? I have the most excruciating headache!"

"Waiter — check," ordered Tommy Gillespie.

"Annie," said Silk Freeman, "I'm used to a flock of attention whenever I go, wherever I go. But I never got so much concentrated int'rest as I'm drawin' right now. Could it possibly be because you're the prettiest thing that ever toddled?"

Her Only Fear

"Behave, B. B.," gurgled Annie. "You're just tryin' to be nice. I'm on'y a small-time broad from the tanks. The idea o' my puttin' the spot on Silk Freeman!"

"Listen, fire-top: you put the spot on me an' you put good men on the spot. Gee, with your looks an' my brains"—

"Okay—let's go in business."

"We are in ousiness. I'll never let you get away from me, Annie. I—I—look at me, you beautiful kid—look at me—look at Silk Freeman, the big shot—look good—look in my eyes—what do you see there?"

Polack Annie drew deeply on her cigarette. It was all she had feared. She didn't have to look into those eyes. She had put up with this stuff all of her life. Once she had been in love and it had been gorgeous—and tragic. Every other time it had been a pain. And this man—she couldn't help admiring him—he was the last word in her world—wanted her!

She wasn't proud. She wasn't glad. It meant that she had to give in and give up again. She was no weakling. She had bumped off the two toughest gorillas in Chicago, the wickedest town on earth. She had been the cause of costing more than a dozen other hard men to go to Hell. She had paid off—pretty. Why did men still see her only as a female? She didn't relish the part.

The waiter laid a check on the table, face down.

Silk Freeman signed it without turning it over.

Silk Sarcastic

"C'mon," he hoarsed, thickly, "we'll breeze to my joint . . . the wine here is lousy—I know, becus they buy it from me. We'll go home where we can get the stuff they can't buy at all. Vintage! Too precious to peddle. C'mon."

Polack Annie sighed.

It was palpable—Freeman had a champagne edge on. And when a hop-head gets stewed, he's wicked.

"Sure," she said. "Oh—sure. That'll be dandy."

Silk Freeman caught something of the spirit of her words.

"Oh—no?" he sneered. "If it isn't dandy, it'll be just a night wasted. An' since you got nothin' to do an' nowhere to go an' nobody to see, what the hell is the squawk about, red-head?"

"Who's squawkin'?" asked Polack Annie.

"You! You brainless broad, playin' hard to land with me—with Silk Freeman—I'll knock you 40 feet out from under that funny little hat that I paid for. You ain't in Chicago now, you punk. You're in New York. An' you're with me—with me! Get that straight an' don't forget it. Now come along—an' smile. If you don't like it, make believe you do. In this burg they think Silk Freeman is a king. Act like it. Get me?"

"I got you," Annie surrendered, reaching for her gloves.

"Sure you got me," said Silk, sulkingly. "Look out I don't get you . . . let's go."

"I'm goin'," said Annie. "I'm goin'."

"You're doggone tootin' you're goin'—you're goin' to my flat—come on, darling, go with Silky or he'll knock you stiff—pick it up an' navigate—Mr. Freeman speaking."

"All right—all right," said Annie, weakly. "Did I say no?"

"You said yes—the only party around me what ever says no—is me!"

Teach Children Not to Fear Policeman, Fay King Advises Parents

IF YOU DON'T STOP CRYING, I'LL CALL A POLICEMAN!
DON'T FRIGHTEN CHILDREN BY THREATS OF THE POWCE! A POLICE OFFICER IS THEIR BEST FRIEND!
I'M LOST!
BEAT IT! HERE COMES A COP!
THE KIDS WHO SCATTER AT THE SIGHT OF A POLICEMAN, KNOW THEY ARE AT SOME MISCHIEF
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

I have written before, and I write again, of the foolish habit parents have of frightening young children with threats of "calling a policeman!"

Is it a wonder youngsters get to look upon their friend in a blue uniform as some terrible dragon who will eat them alive, and would run from him in time of need?

Small children also get the idea that policemen are bent on punishing children when they see mischievious older children scampering away hollering "beat it—here comes a cop!"

A police officer is the best friend in the world if you are doing right. And children should be taught to seek their protection.

A police uniform should be an emblem of security and trust to a child—not a fear!

Lillian's Prejudice Against "Party" Softened

That Lillian had no objection to Ronald's personality, that indeed she would have liked him exceedingly if his eyes had followed admiringly any other girl than Marion, I well knew. But I also knew that contemplating his admiration for her idolized only child had brought her dangerously near to actual dislike of the manly young chap whose romantic devotion to Marion all the rest of us approved.

I saw Helena Brixton's beautiful eyes cloud anxiously, while little etched lines appeared around Ronald's young mouth. Harry Underwood's face was inscrutable, but I sensed that he also was troubled, although there was no hint of it in his voice as, with a word of apology to Ronald, he crossed to Lillian.

"Well, wot says the 'igh justice, the middle and the low?" he queried with a laugh as he looked down at her. "I warn you that I'm the attorney for the accused and I shall fight her case to the highest court."

He was laughing as he spoke, but I sensed something behind his mirth which I think reached Lillian's consciousness also. I held my breath as I saw her strike one hand gently into the other, a little mannerism of hers when she is fighting one of her own inclinations or decisions. Would she yield to her husband's championship of her daughter; would she remember the sacrifice of his own pride and jealousy he just had made for her, or would she let her unreasoning fear for Marion have its way with her?

It seemed an eternity that I watched her, but in reality it was but a second or two before Lillian smiled up at her husband.

"'Much ado about nothing,'" she quoted. "Have any of you heard me refuse to let Marion join the 'party' tonight?"

Her husband's eyes flashed approvingly at her, Helena Brixton gave a relieved little laugh, while Ronald's face ran the gamut from despondency to joy. And from the doorway came a lilting query:

"Oh, Mummy, does that mean I may go?"

It was an exquisite picture of girlhood which the doorway framed. Mary and Marion had made good use of the few minutes they had snatched and there was not a hair amiss in the waved girlish coiffure drawn softly down each side of her face and knotted simply at her neck, nor a fold awry in her gown, while her face in its coloring and texture made one think irresistibly of the time-worn frayed but ever useful simile of a wild rose.

I saw Ronald wince slightly as if her loveliness had struck him an actual blow. For an instant he stood still gazing at her, then with an effort which I knew had cost him dear, for he is excessively shy, he crossed the room to her as if drawn by a magnet, stretching out his hand to her before he had reached her.

"How do you do?" he said, and as she put her hand in his and answered him in like words, and involuntarily the rest of us smiled. It was as pretty a picture of youthful attraction as one would wish to see, and I saw that even Lillian could not harden her heart to it.

It was Marion who remembered first that there were witnesses to this pretty little reunion. I think Ronald would have stood looking down at her upturned face and oblivious to anything else for the next half hour. But Marion drew her hand away after a second or two and, blushing furiously, made an appeal to her stepfather, patently as an escape from embarrassment.

"Dad, you tell me. Did she say I could go to the party?"

"I haven't heard the decision announced as yet, Marion," he returned with twinkling eyes. "But I fancy judgment is about to be rendered."

"Come here, Marion," Lillian said softly, and when her young daughter reached her side she slipped an arm about her waist and turned to Helena.

"Now, let's hear about the party," she said comfortably. "who, where, what, when, how many, how long, how much to eat?"

She was laughing as she finished, and Helena Brixton joined in the laughter.

"You haven't lost your touch, Lil," she said, "but I'll answer your questions in order. Who, Marion, Carolyn, Ronald and his friend, George Lancey, chaperoned by myself and—Charles, if he isn't called away to join Sam."

"Your brother-in-law's going," Lillian began, and I saw Marion glance up at her anxiously. Was her mother going to refuse after all?

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, November 11

A day of splendid activity, progress and prosperity is assured under the rule of powerfully benignant stars. From every angle there is promise of excellent opportunity for pushing the cherished ambitions toward high goals. These may involve new employment, change of business and environment, promotion and contracts with persons of power and authority. New contracts and agreements are encouraged, but petty personal anxieties or irritabilities should not be permitted to discount these splendid connections and conclusions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of brilliant success and achievement, with all things moving to high goals of ambition and aspiration. It is a time for pushing to this end, although change and rearrangements of environment and activities may be involved. Petty personal anxieties should not be allowed to intrude on these happy and prosperous sequences.

A child born on this day may be splendidly equipped to reach high place in life, with promise of popularity and success in many lines of endeavor. Big things should engage its attention.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Misplaced Chivalry

Anybody who claims that chivalry is dead must have skipped all the heart-balm and alimony cases in the newspapers.

The world is full of chivalry, today; and American men, in particular, are overflowing with it. But, alas, most of it is passed around to the wrong kind of women.

There ought to be all-women juries to decide these heart-balm and alimony cases. Then, the spoils would be awarded to the old, wornout wife, instead of to the husky young beauty who "just hates work."

Tears that flow from penciled eyelashes may touch the hearts of a masculine jury; but, the only tears that would touch the hearts of a feminine jury would be those that flow from eyes that have grown dim, watching for a husband to come home nights.

A man always feels SO sorry for a "poor little girl" who craves all the beautiful things in life, but who would rather cry for them or sue for them than work for them. But an efficient hard-working young business woman, who pays her own rent and her own dinner checks, is supposed to be able to "take care of herself" and usually permitted to do so.

A man's heart just aches for the "unlucky little thing," who has gotten into a mess with some other woman's husband; but, somehow, he seldoms feels a pang for the wife who has been double-crossed.

Thousands of strong men wept salt tears at the fate of the beautiful Ruth Snyder, when she went to the electric chair. But do you remember any man getting excited enough to weep over the tragedy of Mrs. Judd Gray?

Somehow, it takes weakness or beauty or both to appeal to the chivalry that lies at the bottom of every normal man's heart. And there is something dramatic and picturesque about a beautiful sinner, which brings out all his tenderness and instinctive chivalry.

Men should be protected from THEMSELVES in these days of golddiggers, alimony-artists and love-racketeers. The trembling of a pair of artfully-rouged lips has cost many a man thousands in heart-balm—to say nothing of the lawyer's fees.

Don't say that chivalry is dead! Men are as chivalrous, today, as they were in the days of Launcelot and King Arthur. But, now, as then, most of their chivalry is lavished on the kind of women who don't deserve it.

A man may have flawless judgment in business, politics, horses and motor cars. But when it comes to judging women, he goes blind!

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Sending Wedding Cake to Friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it too late to send wedding cake to friends if I have been married two months?

2. Should a card be enclosed in the regular wedding cake box with the date of marriage and whom it is from?

The cake has kept well. It is a fruit cake. We have just returned from our honeymoon.

3. Should the box be tied with ribbon? V. P.

I think that sending the cake now would be ill-timed, and rather out of order. Your friends would, I think, wonder what it is all about.

Instead of sending the cake now, since it is too late, I suggest that you have a tea some day, and serve the cake as the dessert course. Then you might even feature it as the wedding cake, and it would not, when served in this way, seem so "formal" as if you sent it to your friends.

Dictated by Tradition

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have been having quite a discussion regarding a school affair we are going to have soon. I trust you can help us, as you have helped others out of etiquette difficulties.

1. Our school is going to give a dance and we must get bids. It is permissible for us to ask an outsider, isn't it?

2. I am asking a boy who is an outsider. Do I have to buy the bids for both of us?

S. G.

1. A person who does not know the traditions and regulations of this school affair would not be able to answer this. Whether or not you invite an outsider depends on the custom of the school concerning this kind of affair and invitation.

2. Yes, this is the rule of courtesy and hospitality. That the hostess supply the item that indicates the hospitality.

A Gift Above Criticism

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it would be appropriate to give flowers as a birthday gift to a very dear friend of mine? The woman is in her early forties, while I am just 21, and I am uncertain as to whether it would be accepted in the correct light.

A. J.

This would be a charming and gracious bow to make to your friend. And the gift of flowers can never be criticised.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Is Bachelorhood a Blessing or a Curse? Are Married Men to Be Pitied?

Are bachelors the happiest and most fortunate men on earth?

John Keenan said they were. Married men, according to John, were miserable dupes and slaves, bossed and browbeaten, hemmed in by demands and fears and responsibilities. . .

We were curious about how much there was in this idea of his. We have heard it before. So we printed his tirade—and asked the benedicts to let us in on what they really felt about the missis.

And here are Fred and Bill, with their slant on his idea. Do they agree with him? Tune in and find out. Fred's first.

"Dear Sally:

"I suppose this John Keenan thinks that he is a real He Man, and God's gift to the girls. Well, I think he is just a poor excuse for nothing.

"He asked what a man gets out of marriage. So I'll tell him what I've got out of it. It gave me confidence in myself, and an ambition to succeed . . . something to succeed for—not for my own selfish motives, but for those dependent upon me . . . for their pleasure and pride and happiness.

"He says that in every office the married men are 'afraid to open their mouths for fear of being fired.' Well, I think that, if he were to look a little closer, he would find that these close-mouthed married men are simply attending to business.

"And I've found that the boss usually appreciates their application to business, too. Take over a period of years, and the married men will come out on top of the business heap, because they put a little extra effort behind their work.

"I have been married nearly seven years now, and I wouldn't change places with the happiest bachelor of the bunch. Before I married, I went around as much as any fellow, I think. And I knew lots of girls. And what did it all get me? A headache next morning. My money spent on nothing in particular as fast as I made it.

"After seven years of married life, and 'acting as a meal ticket' to the one and only girl, what have I? Two of the finest kids on earth. A machine to take them out in. A comfortable home and the sweetest wife and pal on earth. Certainly we've had our ups and downs, but what of it? You can't get something for nothing in this world. And in 10 years, not throwing any bouquets at myself, I will be far ahead of John Keenan, both in happiness and finances.

"And I'm no old moss-back who has forgotten how to enjoy life. I am only 28, and I still enjoy good times. And I want to tell John Keenan to wake up and get wise to himself. He's not fooling anyone but himself.

"FRED B."

That doesn't sound so dark and dreary, does it? But that isn't all. Bill is even more hearty in expressing himself.

"My dear Miss Martin:

"I suppose that the immature and selfish blurb of John Keenan in today's paper shouldn't really be dignified by an answer—but, as I am afraid that his mistaken and superficial viewpoint is gaining ground among many of our young Americans, who think largely of the physical and material side of life, I am going to give you the opinion of a young married man who is 'maltreated'—one who actually owes his happiness and success to the wise counsel, and companionship, and faith of his wife—and to their mutual devotion to their marriage.

"This Keenan asks, 'Why get married, when the world is full of girls?' Well, simply because happiness is the chief end of human life, and girls who are mere acquaintances or friends of an hour can't give you the foundation for real happiness; while, if you marry the right woman, and aren't completely selfish yourself, you will have a real home. There will be books in that home, and music, and human sympathy . . . and a marvelous care for you.

"I suppose Keenan isn't entirely to blame for his notions. There's so much talk of materialism and whoopee abroad these days that young and immature minds like his, which are impressionable and easily influenced, do get off the track.

"My own experience with marriage gives the lie to every glittering generality in this fellow's letter. My wife and I struggled hard in our early days of small income and enjoyed every minute of it. Our hard work and economy taught us the value of things, the value of money and the value of life. Our struggles together taught us the value of each other. And I bless the day that I married her.

"Keenan talks of married men 'having his sympathy.' Well, he has mine, because of his superficial knowledge and the complete sterility of his outlook. In fact, I have a feeling of pity for all bachelors. Life has beauties they never find. BILL."

So that's their story, and they're going to stick to it. What's yours? Has your marriage been a blessing—or a "Pain in the Neck?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Winter Is Suitable for Your Vacation, Too.

Everybody is interested in the idea of a vacation. When we speak about vacations we usually have in mind the Summer season, with the beach, and the sports that are popular at that time of the year. It is unfortunate that this is the conception we have, but usually it cannot be helped. "Big Business" requires our taking vacations when business demands are most lax. But, please bear in mind, Winter and Fall and Spring, are just as suitable as Summer for the much desired and much needed rest.

The primary purpose of a vacation is relaxation. The rest, change and acquired storage of health send us back to our daily routine of work with vim and vigor.

There are a few simple rules to think about when planning a vacation. First for the average man who has only one or two weeks doubtless it is best to try to take his vacation in late August or September. It is still better, if at all possible to split the vacation, taking half in summer and the remainder in winter. Four weeks' vacation out of a year is not a day too much. A great many persons feel that they get the effect of a vacation by taking week-ends now and then. I do not consider this adequate for the average hard working individual.

If I had my way every housewife, every farmer, every laborer as well as the clerks and business people would enjoy the physical and mental benefits of a real vacation. If it had no other benefits the increased appreciation of home would make it worth while.

It is important to take great care in the selection of food when vacationing. Eat moderately and mostly of fresh vegetables and fruits until you have become accustomed to the change of food and climate. Remember to drink plenty of water.

Do not over-exercise. Increase your activity in whatever sport you are interested but do it gradually. Rest is as important as exercise.

Walking is the most healthful and most inexpensive form of exercise. It is by no means an old man's form of exercise. At all ages great benefit may be derived from it particularly when walking through meadows and woods.

Stay out in the sun much of the time, but this practice must be begun in moderation. Severe sunburn is most painful and at times dangerous. Sun baths taken in moderation have been scientifically proven to be of great benefit to the human body. Don't forget that winter sun is capable of burning just as summer sun is.

HOOVER PLEADS FOR RED CROSS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—President Hoover yesterday called upon the nation to support the annual American Red Cross roll call beginning Armistice Day and ending Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Hoover, who also is president of the Red Cross, said:

"I trust that the Red Cross membership drive this year may be more responsive than ever before. The day may come when any of us may have claims upon its assistance or protection."

Woman Uses Ax To Kill Howling Wolf in Trap

SAULT STE MARIE, Ontario, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. A. E. Gagnon killed a wolf with an ax.

The wolf was caught in a snare. Its howling prevented sleep.

A mile away Mrs. Gagnon found the animal in the trap trying to work itself free.

Unable to get behind it for fear of loosening the trap, Mrs. Gagnon made a frontal attack and as the wolf leaped at her she slew it with a swing of the ax.

END OF YOUNG PLAN SEEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany and now treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, predicted today that Germany probably would repudiate the Young plan for reparations payments within 18 months.

Expressing doubt that the German people would carry on the payments much longer, Mr. Gerard said that people who bought German bonds would never see their money again.

Youths Choke Nurse, Flee Detention Home

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov 10.—(AP.)—Three youths in the Kent County Detention Home today choked a nurse into unconsciousness, took her keys and escaped.

The nurse, Miss Betty Malone, 20, was called to the dormitory by the boys, she said, on the pretense that they could not open a locked door.

42,239 PARISH PUPILS HERE

Figures submitted today from the October census of the parish schools of the Catholic diocese of Pittsburgh reveal that in the city there are 42,239 pupils in 86 schools.

The Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of parish schools, points out in the report that at the average cost in Pittsburgh public schools of $126.59 per annum, for the education of each child, Pittsburgh taxpayers are saved $5,300,000 each year by the contributions of parishioners.

The parochial schools are maintained by voluntary contributions of members of parishes and receive no aid in the way of state, county or city taxation.

In addition to the city parish school population, there are 24,811 pupils in 71 schools in the county outside the city. In nine other counties in the diocese there are 19,327 pupils in 74 parish schools, making a total for the diocese of 86,367 pupils in 231 schools, which Father Campbell estimates would cost the taxpayers, based on state estimates of $76 per pupil, an additional $6,565,412 annually if they were under the same maintenance system as the public schools.

LEAGUE LIMITS ARMY SERVICE

GENEVA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The League's preparatory disarmament commission today voted to limit the period of service for army conscription by both a universal maximum and by maximums for each nation which shall become a party to the general convention.

The French delegation succeeded in including in a draft of this provision that these maximums should apply to all military forces on land and sea and in the air.

Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, took no part in the discussion which preceded the vote. The German, Russian and a majority of the commission members also abstained from voting.

Over the week-end a sub-committee succeeded in preparing in a form suitable for incorporation in the draft convention the principles agreed upon in the London naval treaty. It was stated on good authority, however, that this tentative draft in no way affected the naval differences between France and Italy.

Knight Wills Waiter, Once Valet, $100,000

The Stamp of Good Food

A symbol that signifies quality and price

What's in a name? Nothing but the action and conduct that lie behind it and give it special significance. So the simple characters, "A&P," have come to have a place in the speech of most Americans as a symbol for high quality food at low prices.

There is a sound reason for this. Sticking to its policy for nearly three-quarters of a century, A&P has sold the best foods it could buy at prices made possible only by serving many customers with the kind of food they want.

Thus "A&P" has become a hall mark for sterling grades of food at a cost which used to be associated only with poorer grades. A&P customers depend on its trade mark as buyers of silver depend on the stamp, "Sterling," for solid metal.

WAR HEROES HERE FOR ARMISTICE DAY

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

One of the advantages of being a congressman, in case you're planning to be one, is that you see more or less of the world. Congressional committees are here and there and usually the free trips are relished, even fought for.

Attorney Jim Magee, former congressman, recalls the death of a congressman from New Orleans.

No sooner had Speaker Joe Cannon announced the death in the House of Representatives than a congressman rushed up to him with this plea:

"Mr. Speaker, I'd like to be named on the late Congressman Joner' funeral committee. I've never been to New Orleans."

Speaker Joe replied:

"I'm sorry, that committee was filled up a week ago, when Congressman Jones began to cough."

A Jewish boy who lives in Oakland had a birthday a few days ago, but the customary birthday gift from his generous parents was missing. Instead his father told him this story. When the problem of deciding what to buy the boy for a gift came up, the mother suggested that the money might better be spent in helping the needy. So the father hied to Oakland Police Station and told Inspector Jimmy Hoey of the plan. Hoey sent him to Tom Hansberry, one of Oakland's citizens and the chief clerk of the Civil Service Commission. Mr. Hansberry supplied the names of two needy families. And the money for the son's birthday gift went to the two families in the shape of two bushel baskets toppling over with food.

That story is unrelated to an incident which occurred in Oakland's police station shortly after the Pitt-Notre Dame game. A well-dressed gentleman of obvious culture had been arrested in the Stadium for drunkenness and deposited in one of Hoey's finest cells.

After the game the prisoner's friend dropped around, posted a forfeit, and explained things to Desk Sergt. Morgan O'Brien:

"My friend and I aren't regular drinkers and we're not common bums. Be we decided to take a bottle to the game because it was chilly. Neither of us has been drunk for years.

"Well, we were walking up to the Stadium when we agreed to take only one drink for each touchdown Notre Dame scored.

We ran out of liquod.

Belated Halloween story: A half-dozen youngsters who went from house to house on Halloween soliciting nuts and candy debated, outside Secretary Mellon's home in Woodland road, whether they should test the Mellon hospitality. Finally they overcame their fears and trooped up to the big front door, rapped and told the answering butler just what they wanted. The boys were shown in, their hands filled with sweets and escorted over the Mellon home. As they were leaving, one of the boys (we're not sure of this) asked to see "Andy."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 10.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Everybody has offered suggestions as to what is the matter with the world. I just got one to offer and then I will shut up. It's inventors that's put us where we are today. There ain't enough jobs to go round. Why? Because every lazy man in the world has invented something to knock others out of work, and fix himself financially so he wouldn't have to. So, Mr. Hoover, appoint a commission and if they hear of anyone inventing something, or even thinking of inventing something, stop 'em. With four-fifths of the world earning their living by work, we honor men that invent things to knock 'em out of work.

Yours, WILL.

VETS PARADE TO FEATURE PROGRAM

Special Services Held in Churches as Pittsburgh Opens 12th Celebration

Brig. Gen. Frank S. Cocheu, famous commander of the 319th Infantry, 80th Division, in which thousands of Pittsburghers fought, arrived here today to take part in the Armistice Day celebration.

Maj. Gen. William G. Price, Jr., of Philadelphia, another World War hero as commander of the 53d Artillery Brigade; Paul G. Wohlman, Baltimore, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and his aide, R. B. Handy, Jr., of Kansas City, also were among the early arrivals.

The visitors were welcomed at the William Penn Hotel by Col. S. D. Foster, of the 28th Division, another unit which had many Pittsburgh fighters.

America's twelfth celebration of Armistice Day tomorrow will find thousands of Pittsburghers marching through downtown streets and attending patriotic functions in various sections of the district.

Pre-Armistice observances were begun yesterday when many ministers devoted their sermons to war-time subjects. In addition to these the first sessions of the three-day reunion of the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry opened in the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery Armory, Oakland. A business session was held in the afternoon, and a "family affair," in charge of the Ladies' Auxiliary, last night.

CANADIAN MEMORIAL

Canadian Legion veterans held their memorial services in Trinity Episcopal Church last night.

An address to men of his old command will be given over Station KDKA at 4:30 p. m. today by Gen. Cocheu, new commander of the Third Infantry Regiment at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The parade tomorrow will start at 10:30 a. m., passing through downtown streets. At 11 o'clock it will halt two minutes in silent tribute to the men who died in France.

LUNCHEONS PLANNED

Following the parade a luncheon will be held in the William Penn Hotel. Guests will be city officials and veterans. Another luncheon will be held in the Nixon Cafe, attended by downtown Veterans of Foreign Wars and Legion post members. The American Legion banquet will be held in the William Penn in the evening. Another military ball will be held in Webster Hall as a part of the Fifty-third Field Artillery Brigade convention.

Veterans of McKeesport will attend a banquet in the Penn-McKee Hotel, at which Senator-elect James J. Davis will speak.

TO DEDICATE SCHOOL

Featuring the Armistice Day program, a reconstructed 135-year-old log schoolhouse will be dedicated tomorrow afternoon in Mt. Lebanon Township park. Patriotic organizations will participate in a parade to the park for the dedication. The school was moved to the park from its original site more than a mile away with funds supplied by school children and civic organizations.

Headed by the Mt. Lebanon High School band, the American Legion and the Borough Scouts will parade to the park. H. R. Haines, president of the Lions Club, will make the presentation of the restored cabin. Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker at the ceremonies.

WAS HUMBLE RODMAN

Beginning in obscurity as a railroad rodman, Mr. Thompson rose to posts of leadership in public utility enterprises, one of which he held until nearly two years ago when his health began to fail.

He was born May 8, 1875, in Erie, Pa., the only son of Sheldon E. and Laverne Webster Thompson. He attended schools of Erie and was graduated from Allegheny College in 1897, with the degree of civil engineering.

He entered the service of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company, rising rapidly to responsible positions, with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which he joined later, and with which he was connected for nearly 20 years.

In 1908 he became general manager of the B. & O. system and four years later was made a vice president.

When the United States entered the World War, Mr. Thompson was appointed federal manager of a group of railroads with headquarters in Baltimore.

In 1919, Mr. Thompson left the railroad service and entered the utility field as president of the Philadelphia Company and its affiliated companies. After seven years of leadership of this group he went to Philadelphia as head of the United Gas Improvement Company, which post he relinquished in January, 1929.

Since then he had been a consulting engineer with offices in Philadelphia.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Marion Gordon Thompson, and two sons, Gordon and Roland, residing in Philadelphia.

Woman Mourned as Dead Found After 2 Years

Believed dead by members of her family who had conducted a two-year search for her, a woman who said she was a daughter of Mrs. Bridget Murray, of 6 Brady street, was in Bellevue Hospital, New York, suffering from amnesia, according to word received here by city detectives.

Found wandering in Gotham, the woman said she was Bridget Lotki, 38, and gave her mother's name. Events prior to the attack of amnesia could not be remembered by the woman.

When details of the incident in New York were learned, Mrs. Murray with her son-in-law, Harry Murray, and City Detective Michael Carney started for New York to visit the woman.

Mrs. Catherine Desmond, a sister, said the missing woman had been sought for two years and inasmuch as the family had heard nothing from her they concluded she was dead. Mrs. Desmond revealed that her sister was single when she left home and knew nothing of the marriage implied in the communication to local police.

New York police reported the woman approached a policeman Saturday and asked for aid. She told of motoring with a man and two women Thursday but could not give details.

Extortion Plot Suspect Seized in Postoffice

An attempt to extort $500 from Thomas Walsh, 5546 Hobart street, Squirrel Hill, was foiled by city detectives early today, when the sleuths arrested a suspect loitering near a telephone booth in the Pittsburgh postoffice, where the money was to be left.

Michael Massaro, 26, of New Castle, the suspect, denied knowledge of the extortion plot.

Several days ago Walsh received a letter demanding $500, and the letter directed that the money was to be left in a telephone booth near the Third avenue entrance in the postoffice. City Detectives William Bauer, John Stratton, Edward Dunn and Joseph McBoile hid themselves in the postoffice to await the appearance of the extortionist.

Massaro was noticed loitering near the phone booths and at midnight he sat down within a few feet of the booth. However, he did not enter any of the telephone compartments, police say.

A short time after midnight Massaro was taken into custody and taken to police headquarters. In his pockets were found numerous newspaper clippings concerning confidence games. He is charged with being a suspicious person.

CITY SWEPT BY ROBBERY WAVE OVER WEEK-END

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: The following set of rules for keeping husbands happy has been drawn up by a British police court magistrate, Cyril Clancy, of Liverpool, a bachelor. The rules:

"If you marry him—love him."

"If he is secretive—trust him."

"After you marry him—study him."

"If he is sad—cheer him."

"If he is talkative—listen to him."

"If he is jealous—cure him."

"If he cares naught for pleasure—coax him."

"If he favors society—accompany him."

"If he desires a kiss—give it to him."

What do you think of this plan?

Mr. Davis

WALTER DAVIS, East End, student, High School. I believe this treatment would be a little bit too perfect for the average husband to appreciate. He would be pampered too much.

Mr. Welte

R. C. WELTE, South Hills, student, High School. Such a list of rules sounds like they were written by a bachelor. A man that needed so much attention to make him happy should never marry or else find a mechanical wife.

Miss Browdy

MISS JANET BROWDY, Squirrel Hill, student. I think a wife should cheer her husband, but I would not think any woman should trust a secretive man. If she thinks he really wants a kiss, I think she should give it to him.

Miss Bloch

MISS EMMA BLOCH, East End, student. There is one rule that a woman would do well to follow whether it makes her husband happy or not and that is, "If he is jealous, cure him." If she would go out with others, he would soon be cured.

Miss Baker

MISS RUTH BAKER, Oakland, student. A man wouldn't be happy if his wife were so easy-going and weak willed. She should assert her rights and prove that she has a mind of her own.

Mr. Boyle

WILLIAM BOYLE, Morningside, student. These rules as the basis of married life should make any man happy. Of course it would be a little hard on the girl, but that is not the question.

Two Negro bandits escaped with $51 in the holdup of the Gulf Refining Company's service station, at Seventh avenue and Bigelow boulevard. The pair fled in an automobile.

Leo Manganello, of 723 Larimer avenue, a grocer, put two thugs to flight when he screamed instead of complying with their demands in his store Saturday night. Both were armed, according to Manganello.

Dick Hayden, of 125 Hazelwood avenue, was beaten and robbed of $15 by a thug on the Glenwood Bridge early yesterday, police were informed.

Howard Conway, taxicab drixer, of 976 Neville street, Coraopolis, was robbed of $30 by two Negroes in Fernwood street, last night. The pair engaged the cab in Coraopolis and directed Conway to drive to Pittsburgh, upon reaching their destination the pair drew revolvers and took Conway's cash.

Grappling with a Negro whom he found ransacking his house, D. Covington, of 1735 Arenca street, fired a shot at the man as he broke from his grasp and fled. The intruder stole $45.

STEAL ARSENAL

Fifteen revolvers valued at $425, nearly 4,000 cartridges and nine field glasses were stolen from the sporting goods store of Honus Wagner Company, at 813 Liberty avnue, early yesterday. The robbery was discovered by an employe.

WOMEN EXCEL IN BAKE SHOP

"Church, kitchen and children, for women!"

The ex-Kaiser once voiced the opinion of a great many men when he quoted the above statement. Today, he is in a back yard chopping wood, and women have proved that they are good for something else.

An example of what women can do is shown at the Rhea bakery on Market street. Years ago the executive positions were held by men, but necessity caused a change. When it was necessary to find a new manager, Mary Scanlon, who had been an employe of the firm for several years, was substituted in the position until the proper man could be found.

Miss Scanlon held the position for three weeks and the search for a new manager ended. Miss Scanlon handled the work better than any man had before.

Today, five months after her appointment, Miss Scanlon is still managing the bakery on Market street. More important than that, she is doing her job well, her employers say. Everywhere in the store there are women. Salesgirls, window trimmers, demonstrators are women with bobbed hair, pretty faces, capable hands and intelligent minds.

CARRICK POLICE OPEN STORE FOR POOR

Officers Carry On Own Relief Work With Merchants In All Lines Co-Operating

Members of the Pittsburgh Police Department working out of the Carrick station are looked upon by many South Hills residents as real charitable workers in addition to being good enforcers of the law.

Under the direction of Lieut. David Walsh, the officers have established the Carrick Relief Store in a vacant room donated by the owner at 1826 Brownsville road.

CRIME PREVENTION

Believing a hungry man may become a desperate man, Inspector Dennis Hennessey, of the South Side district, is in full accord with the relief work being carried on by his men. Applications for relief are received at headquarters. Within a short time the policeman on the beat visits the home and checks up on the case.

If it is food that is needed, grocers of the district are ready to help. Merchants already have provided clothes and fuel and all applicants are being cared for. Physicians are ready to give free prescriptions and the druggists are helping to fill them without cost. Homes have been canvassed for cast-off clothing and one automobile dealer has donated 100 tons of coal.

BENEFIT BALL NOV. 20

Members of the Carrick Eagles are to hold a benefit ball in their hall November 20, the proceeds to be used to help the needy in the district.

GERMAN SHOWS SCULPTURE

By PENELOPE REDD

The first contemporary German sculptor to arrive in Pittsburgh is Prof. Max Esser, of Berlin. Laden with sculpture lavished with meticulous craftsmanship, he explains with precision the methods he uses.

Of the sculptures now shown as a small group at the Wunderly gallery, his study of sea gulls is the most arresting. Without being eccentric, he projects the sense of dramatic form which modern eyes demand.

Penelope Redd

Prof. Esser is the foremost animal sculptor in Germany. His parakeet in bronze inlaid with gold suggests oriental workmanship. An otter in Royal Saxon porcelain represents another medium which he enjoys manipulating.

American taste will prefer Prof. Esser's chess set modeled in silver with sea animals as pawns. Sea anenomes, lobsters, sea horses and star fish are chiseled and chased in Cellini-like fashion.

Prof. Esser's ecclesiastical subjects are also on view. His altarpiece for the Berlin Cathedral with porcelain cross and silver candelabra [illegible] the evangelists in their animal symbols is unique.

PARIS, Nov. 10—The nicest frocks exhibit a ruffled surface this season. It isn't that they are out of tune with the world, it is simply that the ruffle is another sign of nice, soft femininity. But whatever the reason for them, most of us will welcome the ruffle for it really can add a most picturesque and dressy note to even the simplest little frock and is distinctive youthful.

BROWN is one shade of evening. Yes, brown and dark brown, too, is the thing for formal frocks. That is the hue of the lovely "cocktail" frock, shown here, which is a feature of the new Lucille collection. It is of very dark brown georgette and has insets of embroidered tulle in a leaf design. The bodice is softly bloused.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Did you ever realize that it is the oily excretion of the sebaceous glands and rubbing that keep you buying silk hose and lingerie so often? This oil film that next-to-skin garments absorb is destructive to silks, because it softens and rots the fibre. Soap and water alone will not cleanse it out. Only a solvent like Energine cuts it. Add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new cleanliness—the pleasing freshness—see how original color is revived. And all this with far less rubbing. You'll be amazed at difference in results from washing in just soap and water, and your silken hose and undergarments will last longer. And don't forget millions use Energine daily for quick removal of dirt and grease spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes. Large can 25c. Get Energine today.

Defense Wins for Pitt. Fates Against Tartan.
Fine Stands Near Goal. Greater Gains Futile.
Game Saved by Tully. Carnegie Ends Shine.

HISTORY REPEATS IN REVERSE MANNER

HISTORY NOT ONLY repeats, but sometimes reverses itself. So noted even some of only ordinary long memory when viewing the outcome of Saturday's Pitt-Carnegie football struggle, which resulted in a 7-to-6 victory instead of a tie, because Charley Tully broke through and blocked John Dreshar's kick in an attempt for point after touchdown. The first two games that Carnegie ever won from Pitt were much alike in one respect—that the Panthers did all the gaining and the Skibos nearly all the scoring. The scores were 7 to 2 and 6 to 0. In one game, Pitt made 19 first downs and Carnegie only one. In the other Pitt piled up a similarly imposing number, while Carnegie got only two.

Charley Tully.

In the two battles together, then, while Carnegie scored two touchdowns and Pitt none, a single tally being enough to win each game, the Tartan made only three earned first downs to the Panthers' 35 or more. Adherents of the Blue and Gold reviled the luck that brought them out losers of contests in which as an attacking force their team was so eminently superior. Though gaining by far the greater amount of ground, the Pittites got only a safety in the scoring and two defeats in the records.

SATURDAY'S RESULT, of course, is a less conspicuous example, inasmuch as there was no such wide disparity between the offensive powers of the Plaid and the Panther but it did follow precedent in that the team which gained less scored more, the only difference being that this time the participants changed roles.

It is of passing interest that Andy Gustafson, first aide to Coach Sutherland in preparing the 1930 Pitt eleven, was the star of one of the noteworthy contests referred to—one in which he personally outgained all Carnegie ball carriers combined more than two to one, pounding his way again and again down the field, only to be thwarted at the goal line and see his team come out second best.

NEUTRALITY BETWEEN PANTHER and Plaid there is none among local fans, seemingly, but if it can be postulated that some observer could maintain an unbiased attitude, it may well be imagined that he would select as the high spot of this homeric combat the magnificent goal line stand which the Sutherlands made in the waning moments of the second quarter, with a couple of almost equally remarkable defenses later in the day.

On the second-quarter occasion and twice later it was the fortune of Carnegie to obtain the ball far down in the scoring zone as a result, not of sustained advances, but of Panther misplays and decisions which cost the Pitt lads valuable ground.

Howard Eyth.

IN THE ONE particular case, it will be recalled Ted Rosenzweig recovered a fumble of a bad pass—poor passing by both Ray Daugherty and Joe Tormay had Pitt often in hot water—and but eight scant yards stood between the Skibos and the coveted goal line. Each of the four drives which Carnegie made against that dauntless Blue and Gold forward wall was well conceived, and quickly and powerfully executed, making full use of superior weight and the application of power where it would most help the runner. But a determination which could not be overcome stood in the way, and Pitt saved its bacon by as courageous a fight as has been seen in many a season, here or elsewhere.

WHO REMEMBERS, in this connection, the famous game in which Pitt four times took the ball from Georgia Tech on downs within the five-yard line? And the one in which the redoubtable Tiny Linn and his mates three times won the oval from Georgetown, huge and aggressive, in the same zone?

It is all the more to the credit of the battling Tartans that they did not let even such supergallantry in the second quarter deter them from a renewed and, finally, a successful onslaught in the second half. It was just the fortunes of war that their efforts should fall short by a single point.

BOTH TEAMS ON Saturday were primed to the minute, in as fine mental state as coaches could produce, neither showing the faintest sign of discouragement or uncertainty under any conditions. Both reflected great credit on the skill with which their mentors had prepared them for the titular engagement.

This was apparnt, for one example, when the Scots took the field for the second half and thrilled the crowd with the longest sustained offensive they showed all day, carrying the ball well down toward the Pitt goal before an alert defense stopped them.

Jess Quatse.

THERE IS NO question that the powerful Carnegie boys have more offensive than the Panthers this year, but the fact that four times out of five the latter stopped that drive, in the face of several adverse breaks that put them with their backs to the wall, shows that the gridders from the hillside have a defensive capacity greater than that of their rivals, who could not stem the Pitt attack in the second quarter short of a score.

GREATEST RESPONSIBILITY by far resting on any one player was that carried by sparkling Eddie Baker, Pitt captain, who, besides the duties of generalship and morale leader, had a heavy weight on secondary defense, did the punting, led interference and kicked off. That Baker made good on his goal-after-touchdown attempt is characteristic of this brilliant but steady fellow, who has improved his play and diversified it, from season to season, as have few stars of any team.

Throughout the last 15 or 20 minutes of the game, Baker, the tackles and Ernie Lewis, guard, alone remained on the field of the Panther regulars, injuries and exhaustion having removed all the others, and in this crisis and under extreme pressure Baker maintained a clever generalship which he had earlier displayed in the fine, cohesive attack that gave his team its touchdown.

REMEMBERING THE SLAUGHTER at the hands of Southern California last New Year's Day, scribes have remarked all season that "Pitt is weak in defense against a forward pass." Inasmuch as not more than 10 heaves out of nearly 70 have been completed by the Panthers' opponents in seven games to date, it might be conceded that this statement is historical, rather than of the present.

The finest evidence of its inaccuracy was given on Saturday, as a consistently strong passing team made good only four out of 15 passes. The interception of three by Baker, Paul Reider and Josh Williams and the knocking down of others almost on their goal line saved the game for the Panthers.

INSIDERS ARE INTERESTED always in plays as well as in men. Football veterans noted that the play used most by Pitt

VETERANS BEATEN

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The youthful doubles team of Christian Boussus and Rene Deduzeiet defeated the veterans Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, yesterday in the final of the All-Saint's Day covered courts tennis tournament.

U. S. RIDERS IN FINAL

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The United States Army team reached the final round of the Argentine polo championships yesterday by defeating the strong Las Rosas quartet, 8 to 4, in their semi-final match. The North American team will meet Santa Paula in the final tomorrow.

DODGERS WIN, 34-0

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Led by Stumpy Thomason, the Brooklyn Dodgers inflicted a crushing defeat on the Minneapolis Red Jackets in a National League football game yesterday. The final score was 34 to 0.

NO WEAKNESS APPARENT IN HARD DRILL

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Spectators who witnessed the workout of the Yellow Jackets at Duquesne Garden yesterday afternoon are fully convinced that any club that beats the Schooley skaters in an International League game this season will know that it has been in a fight.

Under the direction of Coach Charles Reid and under the discerning eye of Roy D. Schooley, local club prexy, the Jackets went at it hammer and tongs for two hours at the Craig street arena, and it was obvious to those who sat in on the drill that Pittsburgh's new ice representatives are young, big, fast and ambitious, and not at all addicted to gentleness.

Yesterday's session, in which the Jackets appeared to differ from a National League team only in the matter of greater vitality and reckless daring, was followed by another hard drill this morning, and the boys will be back at the business of exchanging bruises again this evening.

LIFT LID THURSDAY

Two-a-day probably will be the program for tomorrow and Wednesday, and when the London Panthers come here on Thursday to open the International loop race the locals will be primed to accord the visitors a warm reception.

When Coach Reid sent the Jackets into their long fray yesterday they were lined up as follows:

Risner	goal	Brooks
Hewett	r. d.	Yankoski
McBride	l. d.	Green
Fields	c.	Halliday
Gregg	r. w.	LaRocque
Proudlock	l. w.	B. Moore

After a time all other members of the squad were inserted into the lineups, and before the finish so much juggling had been done that the boys who started on one team were finishing with the other.

At no time did any one combination appear to have any great advantage over the other, and indications are that the reserves will be just about as good as the boys assigned to the starting lineup. Schooley, who is to do the pruning and select the starting lineup, is confronted with a real task.

MOORE, FIELDS SHOW WELL

One of the boys who appeared to good advantage yesterday was Red Moore, 190-pound left defenseman. He hands out a violent body check much after the manner of Roger Smith, and seldom did a forward get past him without absorbing some punishment. Moore is said to be the greatest rugby player developed in Canada since the days of Lionel Conacher, and he closely resembles the Big Train in build.

In addition to showing well on the attack, Gregg, 180-pound right wing, attracted considerable interest by the faultless manner in which he "covered" his man when his opposing left wing sought to participate in a combination assault, and Fields, 180-pound center, won the favor of the critics with his passing and play-making.

The Yellow Jackets appear to be to the International League what the Montreal Maroons are to the National circuit. The Maroons, big and husky, ever were strong for merciless body checking, and the Jackets, also big and husky, appear to be experts at this end of the game.

Sports Scribes Play Motor Square Links

Sports writers of the Pittsburgh papers tried their hand at indoor miniature golf at the splendid Motor Square Garden course yesterday afternoon, with John Hernon, himself a sports writer aside from being the big chief at the garden, as host.

In the struggle for team championship, in which aggregate medal scores for six men told the story, the Press team, including Sikes, Wade, Fritchie, Swanson, Lanucci and Greenwald, compiled a low tally of 300 to take the honor.

Verl Swartsfager, Sun-Telegraph, defeated Carl Shatto, Sun-Telegraph, 1 up, 20 holes, in the final match for the individual championship at match play.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF SATURDAY: AGAINST POLISH LAW TO PRINT A PICTURE OF NIETZCHE —The government of Poland, which is de jure a constitutional democracy, is dominated by Marshall Joseph Pilsudski, who exercises what is described as a "benevolent dictatorship." The portrait I drew is that of Nietzsche, the famous German philosopher, whom Marshall Pilsudski resembles to an extraordinary degree. Nietzche is said to have died in an insane asylum. Pilsudski's political opponents in Poland attempted to use his resemblance and some deregatory facts from Nietzsche's past to attack the Marshall personally. The Polish government, which (after the recent dissolution of Parliament) exercises legislative powers, enacted a law making it a crime to publish Nietzsche's picture. The story was copiously commented on by the newspapers of Germany and Czecho-Solvakia.

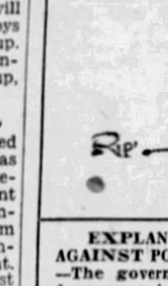
LAWLESS BOXES PIRRONE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two good welterweight performers, Bucky Lawless, of Auburn, N. Y., and Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, go to bat in the main bout in the Motor Square Garden ring tonight, when another large crowd is assured for the reconstructed indoor bowl.

Pirrone, one of the best two-fisted punchers among the younger element in his division, will be making his local debut, and he has been so highly touted that the fans have been eagerly awaiting his appearance. Every fight fan likes a puncher and if Pirrone packs the wallop in either fist that his record indicates he may make a home for himself here this winter. Lawless proved himself a good showman in his recent bout with Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, in the same ring.



Bucky Lawless

Almost as much interest is being evinced in the eight-round semi-final, between Battling Gizzy of Donora, and Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, as there is in the main bout, McArthur has won two bouts since coming here from the Middle West, where he was a stablemate and sparring partner of Sammy Mandell when the latter was lightweight champion. Gizzy is the best club fighter in these parts and is aiming for a windup bout against an opponent of national reputation in the Gardan ring.

Georgie O'Hara, of North Side, and Billy Holt, Negro welterweight of Homewood, are in the second bout and Bobby Barnes, of Homewood, and Sol Lippo, of the Hill, in the six-round opener, scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

A boxing show also is carded at the Coliseum, Washington, Pa., tonight, with Tiny Smith, of Washington, formerly a 15-round boxer in England, and Johnny Edwards, of Wheeling, clashing in a return bout in the 10-round main event, and Jimmy Kelly, of Pittsburgh, and Young Joe Walcott, of Washington, meeting in the semi-final.

Boxing Bouts Carded for Tonight

Paul Pirrone vs. Bucky Lawless, 10 rounds; Battling Gizzy vs. Benny McArthur, 8 rounds, and Georgie O'Hara vs. Billy Holt and Bobby Barnes vs. Sol Lippo, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

Tiny Smith vs. Johnny Edwards, 10 rounds; Jimmy Kelly vs. Young Joe Walcott, 8 rounds, and Johnny Haggerty vs. Tom Anderson and Jimmy Malone vs. Leon Zampetti, 6 rounds each, Coliseum, Washington, Pa.

Cleo Mel Diex vs. Young Patsy Wallace, 10 rounds, Atlantic City, N. J.

Edgar Norman vs. Jimmy Mahoney and Joe Barlow vs. Paul Schiffer, 8 rounds each, Chicago.

Vince Forzione vs. Tait Littman, 10 rounds; Ray Tramblie vs. Johnny Wagner, 8 rounds, and Willie Pellegrini vs. Wilbur Chevalier, 6 rounds, Milwaukee.

Harry Ebbets vs. Battling Tracey and Johnny McMillan vs. Frankie Maryin 8 rounds each, Jamaica, L. I.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Belmont, Braddock welterweight, and his manager, James (Red) Mason, have come to the parting of the ways. Belmont was not satisfied with the caliber of bouts he was getting, it is said, and Mason granted him a release from their contract.

Georgie Annarino, of Newark, O., will be one of the principals in the semi-final to the Henry Firpo-Tiger Joe West bout at the Moose Temple Friday night. Frank Novak, of the North Side, and Marty Gallagher will box in the second bout, and Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, and Al Munro are in the opener.

Phil Goldstein, local lightweight, is back in training and plans to wage a vigorous campaign in local rings this winter.

BILLIARD ACES BEGIN PLAY

The National Three-Cushion Billiard championship tournament eliminations got under way at the Ellis Recreation Parlors, Diamond street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon with Charles Ellis, former world champion, opposing Dale Campbell in the initial match. Both are Pittsburgh district entrants.

Campbell and Ellis played 50 points, and at the finish of their duel, Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, met Harry Oswald, local cueist, who recently finished second to Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, in the national pocket billiard eliminations.

At 7:30 this evening James Beecher and Earl Dahl, two Buffalo stars, will hold the spotlight, and Billy Greenwood, regarded by many as the Pittsburgh district ace, will oppose Pete Daly, of Buffalo, in the day's concluding match.

All matches are to be of 100 points, and the last 50 points of the duels will be clicked off tomorrow, when the order of play will be reversed, the afternoon performers of today becoming the evening players of tomorrow.

The four winners in the 100-point frays will engage in a round-robin tourney on Wednesday and Thursday, and the winner will be known Thursday night.

All of the entrants in the eliminations are exceptionally fine shot-makers, and the competition looms as the most attractive of the season here.

School Cross-Country Races Carded Today

The second annual local high school cross-country run is being run over the Schenley Park course this afternoon, getting under way at 3:45 o'clock.

Runners from Schenley, South Hills, Westinghouse, Langley, Oliver, Allderdice, Peabody and Fifth Avenue are competing.

School Elevens To See Grid Game Free

Children under 16 years of age will be admitted for 10 cents at the game between Wash-Jeff and Bucknell, to be played at the Stadium Saturday.

Through the courtesy of athletic authorities of both institutions, high school football teams of Western Pennsylvania in charge of their coaches will be admitted to the contest free of charge.

This will be the tenth meeting of the rivals and Bucknell never has won over the Red and Black. The closest it has come to a victory was a scoreless tie two years ago. With Pitt playing Ohio State at Columbus and Carnegie Tech idle, this will be the only collegiate game in Pittsburgh next Saturday.

QUINN, SCHANG RELEASED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The unconditional release of Jack Quinn, the veteran pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Wally Schang, veteran catcher, was announced today by Connie Mack.

At the same time Mack announced that Nicholas Borrelli, third baseman, had been "sent outright" to the Dallas Club, of the Texas League.

It was also announced that the Athletics had obtained from the Portland Club, of the Pacific Coast League, Robert L. Johnson, outfielder; Hank McDonald, pitcher, and Joe Palmisano, catcher.

DEFI BY LEVINSKY

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—King Levinsky, who received an unpopular decision over Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, in their fight at the Chicago Stadium last Thursday night, today issued a challenge for a return match. Levinsky's challenge included a promise to donate a share of his purse to the United Charities if the former light-heavyweight champion would sign immediately. He said he would wait three days for Slattery's answer.

QUEAKERS, BEARS FEEL WRATH OF LEADERS

By JESS CARVER.

Ghosts whispered and rustled in the Pitt Stadium Saturday night. Yes, sir, real, honest-to-goodness ghosts. How do I know? Why, I saw 'em, and some of the things they said to me were plenty.

We don't get out of that press box until it's away late and all you spectators have departed. By the time you've finished writing your story, it usually is dark, and you walk down to the field and through the big gate at the south end to get out. All the other entrances are locked tight.

Well, the Stadium is filled with crumpled papers, old programs and newspapers and such, and the wind blows it about. It rustles, in true ghostly fashion, and you walk along that running track, alone and in the dark, with only the eerie half light thrown off from the gray Stadium walls and with that hissing and rustle of the papers.

Yes, I heard the ghosts, old football ghosts, and some of 'em young ones, too. They were talking about Saturday's Pitt-Tech game and about other games throughout the country, for ghosts get the news away ahead of us newspaper fellers and they know just what happened. A ghost can go any place, easy and quick.

TALK ABOUT IRISH

These football ghosts are smart, plenty smart, 'cause they get to see a lot of football and they get to listen in on the coaches and the players and know pretty well what is going on. Saturday night I heard 'em talking about a lot of games, but they were mostly concerned with what had happened in Philadelphia, where Notre Dame crushed poor Pennsylvania, and in California, where Howard Jones set his Trojans to the task of battering the very life out of Nibs Price and his California Bears.

Those two games were the games that were important, sure thing. Notre Dame has to play this Southern California team, that beat California, 74-0, and it has to meet it in the big Coliseum in Los Angeles.

It takes a lot of power to beat a team, especially a major eleven, 74-0. You have to turn the power on and keep it on. Notre Dame can do that, could have done it to more than one opponent this year, but usually, Rockne prefers to go out and get one or two, sometimes three, and then turn the power back off again.

BEST IN COUNTRY

There is no doubt now but that the Trojans and Irish are the best football teams in the country, even though Southern California can't win the Coast title because of the 7-6 defeat handed out early in the season by Washington State. I'll bet Washington State wouldn't do it again. If there was one game Pop Warner wanted to win this year, and one game for which he pointed Stanford, it was the Southern California game and he lost it, 41 to 12. Any time you beat Warner that bad you have a ball club.

Anyway, the game Rockne has to fear now is the Trojan game. Notre Dame is going to wallop both Army and Northwestern, see if it doesn't, and I've a hunch of the two games, the Army will be the tougher. Rock won't turn the power on much in either game, for he'll be laying for Jones. And how he'll be laying.

The ghosts were broadcasting on other games, too. They think it swell of Fordham, West Virginia and Army to get an even break for the East in the six intersectional games of the day. Fordham kept its fine record spotless by rallying to beat Detroit. West Virginia sank Bo McMillin's Kansas Aggies and Army turned back a fighting Illinois eleven.

Where the Middle West scored was when Notre Dame routed Penn, Ohio State riddled the Navy and Michigan nosed out Harvard.

All the ghosts didn't leave town Saturday; a flock of 'em sticking around to see Pitt and Tech. They saw a fine ball game. Not a great game, no; for there were too many errors and for all both elevens played about as good football as they have all year, they still were not up to the standard we have learned to expect from Pitt and Tech.

MUST SCORE TO WIN

Some of the ghosts thought Tech deserved to win because the Tartans made the most first downs. But other ghosts gave 'em the bird on that, telling 'em that you have to get that ball over the goal line, the last line at either end of the field, and that all the fine running you may do between the 25-yard marks won't score you a point.

Here was it, as it looked to me, and I heard some of the ghosts saying the same thing. Pitt made its one scoring opportunity on its own merits and took successful advantage of it to count a touchdown. Tech's two big opportunities, one of which was appreciated, were both made by Pitt errors. There was no getting away from the fact that Pitt presented a great defense, once Carnegie got within scoring range,

EARNSHAW FINDS YANKS, NATS TOUGH FOES

MACK ACE TOPS CLEVELAND IN SIX GAMES

George Earnshaw, star pitcher of the World Champion Philadelphia Athletics, and the hero of the last world series between the Mackmen and Cardinals, found the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators his toughest opponents during the 1930 pennant race, according to figures released today by the American League.

Earnshaw, on the other hand, found the Cleveland Indians, his softest opponent, George having beaten them in six out of seven games. He failed to break even in his battles with the Yankees and Senators.

GROVE LEADS ALL

Bob Grove won 18 games from Boston, Cleveland and Detroit, losing but two games to those three clubs. He won only one but lost none to New York.

Alvin Crowder found his old club, St. Louis, the hardest to beat, losing three out of five. Pitching for Washington, he did not lose to Boston, Cleveland nor New York but, pitching for St. Louis, he lost one to each.

Sam Jones, Washington veteran, did not lose a series, but tied with Chicago and Cleveland. Fred Marberry did not lose a series either, but tied with Cleveland and Philadelphia.

Hadley, Jones and L. Brown won 12 games from the Yankees.

Ed Wells, Yankees, found the Browns easy, winning four straight. Big Ed lost only three games, all to Washington.

Pitching for New York, Charley Ruffing won 15 out of 20 games, winning every series except that with Philadelphia with whom he tied, two and two.

The most successful pitchers against Philadelphia were Wesley Ferrell, of Cleveland, and Urban Faber, of Chicago. Ferrell won five out of seven; Faber, three out of four.

HARDER BEATS RED SOX

Mel Harder, Cleveland youngster, took seven of his 11 victories from Boston and Chicago. Clint Brown, of the same team, won six of his 11 from St. Louis and Detroit.

Wesley Ferrell tied his series with Detroit and New York and won from the other five clubs.

Earl Whitehill won four out of four from Boston and four out of seven from Washington.

Ted Lyons won 17 of his 22 victories from Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and Washington. He lost four and won none form Philadelphia.

Frank Henry, of Chicago, who lost 17 and won only two games, scored his victories over Cleveland and Philadelphia, acting as a relief pitcher in each instance.

MacFayden, of Boston, lost all of his games with Washington and Philadelphia, but took three straight from St. Louis and three out of four from Detroit. Lisenbee, of the same team, took four straight from Chicago but only one out of five from St. Louis and one out of five from the Athletics.

Wally Stewart, slender St. Louis left-hander, who won 20 games, took five in a row from Washington but dropped four straight to New York. He took two out of Gray lost five straight to the Athletics.

UNABLE TO BEAT A'S

Pitchers failing to win a game from Philadelphia were Gray and Kimsey, of St. Louis; Liska, of Washington; Morris, MacFayden and Russell, of Boston; Braxton, McKain, Walsh, Weiland and Thomas, of Chicago; Harder, Lawson, Jablonowski and Shoffner, of Cleveland; Cantrell, Hoyt and Wyatt, of Detroit; Gomez, of New York.

MACALUSO SETS SCORING PACE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Smashing over four touchdowns and adding as many extra points in a great scoring display against Columbia, Leonard Macaluso, of Colgate, passed the 100-point mark to hold his big lead in the struggle for Eastern individual football scoring honors.

Macaluso has a total of 106 points, while his nearest rival, Goff, of Rhode Island, who jumped into second place by tallying 30 points Saturday, has 96 to his credit. Bart Viviano, of Cornell, and Jack Grossman, of Rutgers, are tied for third at 84.

BUCKEYES PREP FOR PITT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10.—Ohio State's football team received such a glorifying tonic in whipping Navy, 27-0, Saturday that it may bode ill for the Pitt Panthers when they come here this week to engage the Buckeyes.

The Buckeyes arrived home early yesterday morning full of pep and ambition and anxious to atone for two previous lickings this fall. The far-famed Ohio State offense functioned for the first time this season against the Middies and Coach Sam Willaman predicts some surprises for the pupils of Jock Sutherland.

Willaman will lose no time in preparing for the Pitt invasion and spent a good share of the Sabbath with Allan Holman, assistant coach and Bill Bell, giant Negro tackle, who was held out of the Navy contest at the request of Annapolis officials, and who scouted Pitt against Carnegie Tech. Both boys brought back several bits of interesting information about the Panthers, and it will be disclosed to the Buckeyes at today's practice.

But few scrimmages will be held this week and, in view of the fact that the Ohioans came out of the Navy contest without injuries, the squad should be in tip-top shape for Pitt.

It will be a problem for Coach Sutherland to figure out where Wesley Fesler, Ohio State's all-America candidate, will play. Willaman may use him at either fullback or end exclusively or both places.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 55.

I was in a most comfortable position while we were looking ahead to our second western trip in 1929 when the worst blow of the season hit us on Independence Day at home.

We had morning and afternoon games scheduled with the Red Sox on that holiday and Shibe Park was packed to capacity in both games.

Connie Mack

In the morning game, a close inside pitch caused Mickey Cochrane, our matchless catcher, to fall to the ground to avoid being hit in the head.

In falling he struck the end of his bat heavily with his side and a rib was fractured. He did not know the gravity of the injury at the time, but played throughout the morning game, although in great pain.

Between games, the trainer treated and bandaged the injury and Cochrane went back into action in the afternoon and played, never realizing that he had a broken rib. How he could do this, I don't know except that no Spartan had more grit than Cochrane.

I took him out at the end of eight innings to rest him after we had piled up a big lead on Boston. That night we left for Chicago.

HITS DARK DAYS

In the preliminary practice before the first game in Chicago, Cochrane complained so much about his side that in alarm we rushed him to a hospital in a taxi and an X-ray revealed a cracked rib.

There was nothing for me to do but to send him back to Philadelphia for treatment, so we played that series with the White Sox with Cochrane, Boley and Bishop out of the lineup, while, on the last day of our stay there, Haas, our center fielder, developed a trench mouth and also was taken out.

Those were the darkest hours of 1929 for me. Here we were starting a long western trip with four of our regulars out of action.

The evil effects of the loss of these four players were immediately felt. The White Sox, usually easy for us, knocked us off three times in four games.

When I realized that our next stop was in St. Louis, where we had to play six games in three days, I saw the possibilities of being catapulted out of first place before we finished this trip.

GIVES PEP TALK

Something had to be done quickly. To prevent our players from going into a panic, I called a meeting on the morning of our arrival in St. Louis.

Up to this time, our daily pep talks had been abandoned as a regular thing and I believed that it was now time to resume them.

I started that talk by telling each player how good he had been all through the season. I added that we had some recent bad luck in losing players, but I was quick to point out that we had competent substitutes in their places.

I particularly dwelt on the high-class receiving, throwing and hitting done by Ralph Perkins, our veteran maskman, after Cochrane had to leave the game.

"We are not broken reeds," I thundered, "we have substitutes for every man out, and these substitutes would be regulars on many other teams, so get it out of your heads that we are crippled.

"All you have to do is to hustle a little harder, put forth some stronger licks, and we will win with these reserves in the lineup as we did when the regulars were in."

PERKINS BRIDGES GAP

I hammered that point in strong and I noticed that the players left the room in high spirits.

They surprised even me with the spirit with which they went after the Browns in that series. Perkins caught as smoothly as if he had been behind the bat all season and surprised us with his timely hitting.

No doubt his smart work had a great deal to do with restoring confidence among the players. The upshot was that we won four out of six games and stopped the slump.

Our next stop was in Cleveland, always a tough spot for us, and there in the lobby of our hotel we found Cochrane, his face wreathed in smiles, waiting for us.

You can't keep a fellow like him out of the game long. Specialists in Philadelphia had treated his broken rib and told him he could catch without danger of complications, although the side would be sore for an indefinite time.

COCHRANE REJOINS

That was enough for Cochrane, who hopped on the next train for Cleveland.

His appearance was a tonic to the team. On the same day, Haas declared he was ready to return to center. The dark clouds were steadily drifting away.

We continued our good work by taking three out of five games with Cleveland and then finishing our trip in Detroit by mopping up the Tigers four straight.

Therefore, after losing to the White Sox, we had won three straight series and finished the western trip with a record of 12 victories and seven defeats.

I knew then I had a championship team.

IRISH FEATURE GRID PLAY

and Coach Sutherland used splendid judgment in his substitutions.

It would have been fine to have had that kick of Dreshar's for the extra point turn out o. k., but you know, he really never had a chance to kick that goal. Why? Well, for the simple reason that Pitt threw an 11-man line against him. And you can't stop that sort of a line. There are at least three men who are going to come charging through there unmolested, and they are bound to get into the backfield before the kicker can get the ball off safely. Charley Tully did and Tech lost its chance to try.

A dinky little forward pass would have worked wonders in that situation. The ghosts thought so, too.

GENEVA WINS, 7-0

Geneva, Grove City and Thiel wound up on the long end of scores Saturday in other tri-state district games. Geneva took a Conference victory away over Westminster when Johnny Knapik threw a pass to Red Seaburn, after the Titans had held the formidable Covenanters off for most all of four periods. Thiel beat Bethany same as Pitt beat Tech and Grove City's attack clicked again as the Crimson walloped Waynesburg, 33 to 8.

The Teachers' College teams were at it again, with Slippery Rock beating out Edinboro and California walloping Clarion.

In other feature Eastern games, Colgate walloped Columbia's second and third stringers, 54 to 0. Lou Little figured Andy Kerr would want to show his team off in New York, so he kept his battered regulars on the bench and let Colgate provide the entire show.

Lehigh finally beat Princeton, after 33 years of trying and Penn State rose to the heights in holding the powerful Syracuse team to a scoreless tie. Bucknell and Villanova put on a dog fight, with Bucknell winning, three touchdowns to two. Chick Meehan's New York U. Violets couldn't bloom two weeks in a row and Georgia went back down South with a 7-6 win.

FIVE UNBEATEN TEAMS

The major undefeated teams in the country now consist of Notre Dame, Washington State, which walloped Idaho Saturday, Army, Northwestern, Marquette and Fordham. The Army has been tied and both the Cadets and Northwestern are going to be beaten by Notre Dame. Dartmouth has been tied by Yale, but is going to find things far from rosy once it heads toward the far West and the things Pop Warner has in store out there in Palo Alto.

If you doubt there are ghosts in the stadiums stick around after the next game out there, until it gets dark, and you'll see 'em and hear 'em, too. Maybe they'll tell you all about it and maybe they won't, but you'll have to understand and maybe you'll have to pretend a bit.

SPORT VIGNETTES

One of these days Knute Rockne will be able to develop a first team at Notre Dame that will not have to be relieved by the reserves in all of its games, and then maybe the Irish will be able to get somewhere instead of merely winning by scores of 60 to 20 and the like. . . . .Isn't it about time the heads of Pitt and Carnegie Tech took some steps to curb the enthusiasm of their student bodies, which again are threatening the very life of the colorful city championship football series by their embittered actions?. . . . . .Such disgraceful scenes as marked the completion of last Saturday's game at the Stadium endanger innocent bystanders as well as the combatants themselves and a firm hand must be brought into play to cool off the ardor of the rival camps. . . . . Football, after all, is supposed to be merely a game and it is a mistake to take it as seriously as these student bodies have during the past week. . . . . Once before, a decade ago, it was necessary to suspend relations for a period of three years to restore order, and matters are rapidly heading in that direction again.

Carnegie Tech adherents may find much solace for their team's 7-6 defeat by Pitt in this year's renewal of their football series in the fact that during most of the game their team outplayed Pitt offensively . . . .We say offensively only because the Panthers, with their conservative game, finished on the long end of the score, and that is the payoff. . . . . .It matters little by what means victory is achieved, so long as it is fair. Pitt's game was to grab itself a lead, by any margin whatever, and sit on it, which is what it did, running the risk of being held to a tie score. . . . .No one denies that Tech far outrushed the Panthers and had Jock Sutherland's men on the defensive almost throughout, yet the Panthers' strategy triumphed and Tech's failed. And to the victor belongs the spoils of victory.

An analysis of the game shows that Tech was in a threatening position on Pitt's side of the field no less than nine times, while Pitt invaded Carnegie's side of the field only once, yet Pitt then had the drive to carry on through a march of 54 yards to its only score and the opportunity was of its own making, beginning with the runback of a punt in the second period, while the way for both of Tech's two real scoring chances, in the second and fourth periods, was paved by Pitt mistakes. The first of these saw Rosenzweig recover a fumble on the eight-yard line, and Tech failed by inches to go over, while, on the second occasion, Tech took the ball on downs on the 14-yard line after two successive bad passes from center for Pitt punts and scored. . . . . Then, too, Pitt cleanly kicked its try-for point for the winning marker, while Tech's attempt was a poor one and easily blocked.

Despite the closeness of the score and the fact that Carnegie gained so much more ground than Pitt and made so many more first downs, there was no part of a fluke about Pitt's victory. True enough, it was a bitter dose for Tech, the favorite, to swallow, but don't forget that Pitt played a heads-up, confident although less daring game all of the way and was the more alert of the two teams in the pinches, just as it was in its recent game with Syracuse, which it won, 14 to 0, although it had only two scoring chances against eight for the Orange. Tech deserves a lot of credit for its fine exhibition and the fact that it provided most of the playing thrills, but to withhold from Pitt, the winner, the enconiums which are its due would be manifestly unfair under the circumstances.

Two hectic battles were staged yesterday afternoon in the Western Pennsylvania Independent Gridiron Conference. East Pittsburgh pulled the big surprise of the day, holding the Majestic Radios to a 0-0 score at the Quarry Stadium. The Ambridge Mystics, though outplayed in the matter of downs, stopped West View scoring at the Park and that game also ended scoreless.

The East Pittsburgh game must have been a sore disappointment to Art Rooney, for the Big Green machine had its first opportunity to go into undisputed first place. Poor playing muffed that chance.

It was a good game to watch, but the Majestics failed to reproduce the form they displayed against McKeesport and Burns.

OFFSIDE RUINS SCORE

The West View battle was the same way, 14 first downs to six was the Majestic edge, but critical football followers begin to feel that first downs mean little when a score cannot be made.

The Majestics' only chance to score came with the ball on the six-yard mark. When Levey plunged over, both teams were offside. The nearest West View came to scoring was in getting the ball to the Mystics' three-yard line, there to lose it on downs.

McKeesport Olympics swamped the Glassport Griffin Oils, 20 to 0, and Akron Awnings defeated the Canton Bulldogs, 14 to 0.

The McKeesport Olympics-East Pittsburgh conference game will be played Wednesday evening at Parnassus High School field. This game means much to the Black and White, with the leadership involved, and with East Pittsburgh making a fine showing of late, a great crowd should be on hand.

Tomorrow being Armistice Day, many big games are scheduled in the district. The McKeesport Olympics will clash with Monessen Olympics at Husher field, Monessen. This game, arranged by the upriver veterans, will start at 7:30. There is to be a grand ball after the game, and the players are invited.

At Sewickley, the undefeated Yellow Jackets will clash with Rox Rangers and seeing that Toby Uansa's club has been getting reams of publicity, a crowd should pack in the ball park.

BIG GAMES CARDED

At Parnassus High School field, the Arnold Independents and Tarentum Firemen stage their annual battle. This is a local derby.

Next Sunday will be a big day in conference circles. All of the teams will see action. West View meets the Majestics and McKeesport tackles a tough assignment at Ambridge, meeting the Mystics. At the Quarry Stadium, Burns meets East Pittsburgh. Yesterday's lineups:

FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS

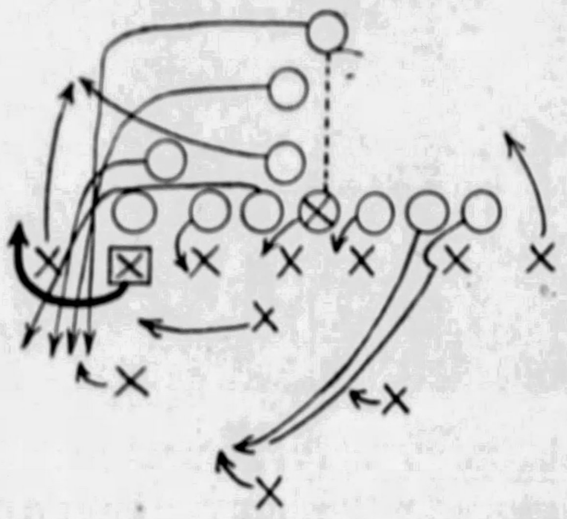
All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928, Now Head Coach at Geneva College.

Do You Know---



THAT It is one of football's inexcusable mistakes for a defensive lineman to circle behind his own line in order to attempt to stop a play?

Above is illustrated what happens when a defensive tackle takes it upon himself to cover territory other than his own.

The play, a very common off-tackle play, starts out as a wide end run, but turns out to be a sweep inside of the end and over tackle.

If the defensive tackle, sensing an end run, pulls out of his position and runs behind his line in an attempt to get in front of the play, he leaves his own territory entirely unprotected for this off-tackle run.

Each lineman has a given area for which he is responsible, and under no circumstances should he charge any way but straight ahead into his own territory.

HOYLE QUINTET ADDS STARS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Having made a name for themselves in light first-class ranks, the W. U. Hoyles, of the North Side, this year will make an attempt to compete in faster company when they sponsor a first-class amateur quintet. The Hoyles for years were rated with the best light first-class teams in Western Pennsylvania, and with the addition of such prominent passers as Ed Lee and Joe Weber, former Penn State College aces; John Ewalt, of Grove City; Dick Phillips, former South Hills boy; Simpson, former Avalon High star, and Arthur Ammon, one-time Heinz House flash, the Hoyles are confident they can compete with the best clubs in Western Pennsylvania.

Ray Haggerty, popular manager of the club, has completed arrangements with the Perry High School authorities to play all Hoyle games on the high school floor on Friday nights. Manager Haggerty is hard at work arranging a difficult schedule and is eager to hear from first-class teams desiring games at home and abroad. The Hoyles are ready to hear from all clubs desiring a good attraction for Thanksgiving night. Arrangements may be completed by writing Ray Haggerty, 1908 East street, or by calling Cedar 3549-M.

Dribbles

Bobby Angelo, former Grove City College and Golden star, will perform for the Fintex team in the Allegheny County League, according to Wy Paris, manager of the club. Paris also is making an effort to line up Homer Rose.

Last year's undefeated Duquesne Lutheran basketball team, winner of the Slovak Evangelical Union national basketball title and twice champion of the Duquesne Church League, is back on the floor this season with a strong team. Light first-class teams seeking this club as an opponent write Joseph Voivoda, 206 Aurilles street, Duquesne, Pa., or call Duquesne 5958.

The Manchester Community Lyceum quintet, for a number of years a prominent figure in local amateur basketball circles, will be entered in the Greater Pittsburgh League this winter. Charles Craig, 3344 Brighton road, is handling the booking arrangements.

The Y. M. H. A. varsity and reserves will open their basketball campaigns next Thursday, on the Y. M. H. A. floor, when they meet two strong opponents. Dave Mervis is coaching the reserves and Buck Gefsky the varsity. Lou Skeegan, star of the Fifth Avenue High School team, two years city champion, will play for the Bellefielders.

The loss of the South Side Market House floor, which is being used as an indoor golf course, has curtailed basketball activities on the South Side, one of the city's best spots in the development of first-class basketball stars. A large number of amateur and independent clubs as well as South High School, will have to seek new quarters. As a result many of the old favorites of the South Side will not be back this winter.

TENTH ANNUAL HEARST RIFLE MEET SET

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the 6th Army Corps area, with headquarters at Chicago, has been directed to make necessary arrangements to hold the national R. O. T. C. rifle match for the William Randolph Hearst Trophies in 1931, according to word received from Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley. This will make the tenth successive year that this national match has been held under the auspices of the War Department and involving all of the educational institutions in which the government maintains R. O. T. C. units.

Acting Secretary of War F. H. Payne, in writing of this national match, said:

"The perpetuation of the competitions is of inestimable value in the advancement of rifle marksmanship among students attending educational institutions. I am heartily in favor of them and will lend every assistance possible in making the tenth year of these matches as successful as they have been in past years. In making these competitions possible, Mr. Hearst is doing considerable toward the development of youths in citizenship, and the results attained in previous years are most gratifying to the War Department."

At the Chicago Day celebration, October 9, on which occasion Mr. Hearst was the official guest of the city, the 5,000 cadets of the Chicago high schools turned out in a body to do honor to Mr. Hearst. As a part of the ceremonies in the stadium at Soldiers Field the cadet officers presented Mr. Hearst a beautifully engraved memorial which reads: "To Mr. William Randolph Hearst, in recognition of his encouragement to the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, we, the cadet officers of the Chicago public high schools, wish to express to Mr. Hearst our appreciation for his unfailing support of the R. O. T. C. and for his generosity in making possible the National R. O. T. C. Rifle Competition."

So keenly interested are educational institutions all over the United States in the National R. O. T. C. rifle matches for the William Randolph Hearst trophies that they cannot wait for the official announcement to enter their teams. Pending the receipt of this official information, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, has notified Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, with headquarters in Chicago, that it will enter seven teams in the 1931 shoot. Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., has submitted a request to enter one team; the Manlius School, Manlius, N. Y., enters three teams; Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., the University of Delaware, Newark, and the Atlanta (Ga.) high schools have applied to enter teams.

In the 1930 matches nearly 500 teams were entered. The national championships went to North Dakota Agricultural College, the Missouri Military Academy and the Western Kentucky State Teachers' College, which is classed as a high school, in the 1930 shoot. The Missouri school won the National Cup three times in succession, thus entitling the school to permanent possession.

Long's Sport Comment

and Carnegie, the spinner, was almost invariably stopped by both, and that Carnegie's ancient but oft-effective end-around play wouldn't work against the Panthers, familiar with its technique. It was observed, too, that for the third straight year a light but low-charging Pitt line held the mighty John Karcis well in hand. But in this case, the faster, shiftier Howard Eyth and George Kavel, and hard-running Murray Armentrout took heavy toll, and all but changed the course of the game by their ability to make a lone gain when they made any at all.

George Kavel.

CARNEGIE'S STRENGTH ON defense was largely in its splendid ends, who, as had been expected, greatly outclassed the erratic and uncertain Pitt terminals, and also in John Highberger and in Karcis. The last named at times stopped three or four plays in succession, though his propensity to bump into a runner rather than grasp him cost a considerable gain when Warren Heller richochetted away for added yardage.

Pitt's fleet halves made their occasional gains almost entirely by cutting in off tackle, it proving impossible to get outside the powerful, sagacious Rosenzweig and Latham Flanagan. Of the Panther wingmen, Jim MacMurdo played an improved, though spotty game, but there was none to be compared to the Plaid ends.

PITT'S TACKLES, on the other hand, outdid themselves. Tully, always rated a steady plugger, but thought to possess little capacity to rise to an occasion, gave the lie to that estimate by as hard-fighting, smart a game as could be imagined, and Jess Quatse wasn't a whit behind him. They were towers of strength throughout.

And they had to be, with woolly passes from center and penalties which voided Pitt's longest gains and moved the ball back almost to their own goal line again and again putting the Panthers in tight spots, in which the tackles, as usual, took the brunt of the attack. However, the occasions on which Hart Morris, Walter Milligan and Lewis plunged through from their guard positions to stop Carnegie runners back of the line helped Pitt more than a little.

IT'S A PITY the seating arrangements at the Stadium continue to obscure from many patrons the efforts of the Pitt rooting section. Spectators who sat on the north side of the field commented flatteringly on the untiring support given the underdog eleven by the Blue and Gold student body, but the larger portion of the crowd, and the fans who attend the games most regularly, was unable to hear or see much of the cheering display.

Stocks Tumble — Local Stocks Decline

STOCK PRICES SINK TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Fresh Weakness Comes Into Market After Rally and Leading Shares Tumble

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The virtually uninterrupted bear movement in stocks rolled into its third month today, having already broken most endurance records.

The list had a brief rallying spell for a time in the morning, but fresh weakness of the utility and rail shares soon turned the entire list emphatically downward, driving prominent issues to the lowest prices in two years or longer.

Union Pacific dropped 8 points, and Atchison, North American, American Tobacco B, Macy, Public Service of N. J., Liggett and Myers B, Delaware and Hudson, and Kansas City Southern were among issues declining 3 to more than 5 points. Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, General Electric, Radio and American Can declined 1 to 2 points to new lows. Standard Oil of N. J. dropped 2 points to 49, going below the price of 50, at which a bid for 1,000,000 shares checked the decline a year ago.

RALLY SHORT-LIVED

Several commission houses had predicted a substantial technical rally today, but the upturn during the morning was disappointingly short-lived. The day's business and corporate news failed to shed any new light on the situation. The appointment of a receiver for Cosden Oil, a small unit of the industry, had been foreshadowed by the recent action of the stock, but possibly it served further to aggravate the unsettlement in the market.

The statement of the Royal Dutch Company board at the extraordinary shareholders' meeting in Amsterdam to the effect that present conditions in the industry permit a profit margin for only the largest producing companies served to emphasize the troublesome conditions in this industry. The board intimated clearly that it considered the withdrawal of export prices by the Export Petroleum Association of the United States last week as promising price wars. Oil trade circles, however, hoped that remedial measures might be adopted as a result of the meeting in Chicago of the American Petroleum Institute.

STEEL SHOWS GAIN

Reports from the steel industry were if anything a little more favorable. Ingot production in the Cleveland area was placed this week at 50 per cent of capacity, against 52 last week, but some large automobile manufacturers are shortly going into production on new models, and this may tend to check the slackening of operations in some steel plants.

The United States Steel Corporation's monthly unfilled tonnage report, showing a gain of about 57,000 tons, was favorably regarded, although it failed to check the decline in the stock. It is reported in steel trade circles that advance specifications are so indefinite as to the dates when deliveries will be requested that unfilled orders have to some extent lost their barometrical importance. The fact that the decline was checked, however, was encouraging, and perhaps indicated that consumers were coming to the view that prices are dragging bottom.

COPPER MEETING

The conversations which are understood to be under way in New York, looking to world curtailment of copper production, to stabilize prices, were veiled in secrecy, but reports in trade circles had it that substantial progress was being made toward reaching an agreement. It was expected that definite results will not be forthcoming for some weeks.

The stiffening in the tone of the call money market noted last week seemed to be passing. The rate held at 2 per cent at the loan desk, but concessions in the outside market were again reported.

Carnegie Puts $1.60 Minimum on Bars

Carnegie Steel Company, principal subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation in this district, announced today that the minimum price for bars, plates and shapes is $1.60 a hundred pounds, effective immediately. While this does not constitute an advance from previous published quotations, it represents the first definite stand taken on the prices of the principal steel products for over a year. In the summer of 1929 these products were quoted $1.90 a hundred pounds.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—All deliveries of wheat dropped today to fresh low price records. Reports of improved weather conditions for crops in Argentina, were largely responsible together with a decided increase of the amount of wheat on ocean passage. Starting at ⅝ to 1⅜ cents setback, wheat later displayed but little power to rally. Corn opened unchanged to ⅞ cent off, and subsequently showed an all around sag.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Resumption of selling pressure after an early interval of moderate strength sent curb prices skidding today. Rallying tendencies of the first hour, which lifted many of the active shares about a point, gave way to further weakness in the oil and utility groups and prices reacted to around Saturday's lows.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Forbes

Stand Taken by Democrats Is Beneficial.

By B. C. FORBES

"To the extent of its ability, it will steer the legislation of the nation in a straight line toward the goal of prosperity."

THAT PUBLISHED assurance by Democratic leaders, on behalf of their party, is calculated to have very beneficial influence in high financial, industrial and business circles once the latest spasm of acute nervousness in Wall Street passes. Not a little of the caution exercised this year by high finance and big business has been fostered by fears of drastic political changes and then of unsettling political action. The drastic political changes have occurred; the solemn pledge that no disturbing action will be attempted comes as a welcome relief.

B. C. Forbes

The even balancing of opposing parties in Congress holds no terrors for finance and business. Indeed, a period of political inaction would be hailed with satisfaction. Business wants to be left alone.

The new political turn may do more than at the moment expected to bring about a more hopeful and confident attitude upon leading men of affairs.

APART FROM WALL Street's fit of hysteria, the week's developments were fairly evenly divided between the favorable and the unfavorable.

Very gratifying were the gains in railway car loadings for the country as a whole and the substantial increases recorded by important Eastern lines. Improvement usually first manifests itself in the East. The railroads have now secured control of their expenses, and from now on should be able to report distinctly less unfavorable comparisons with a year ago.

Wheat and corn closed only slightly changed for the week. Cotton gained a little.

WALL STREET was again the weakest spot in the whole situation. Stocks were freely sold on the resumption of trading after Tuesday's election, Thursday brought a dip to slightly lower levels, Friday was the worst day of all, and Saturday brought no relief from the persistent down trend. Average quotations fell a dozen points below the minimum touched on November 13 last year. Domestic bonds also sagged to a new low point for the year.

Of course, there is no longer the overwhelming rush of liquidation witnessed a year ago—the market has been very thoroughly sold out. The bulk of last week's selling apparently came from holders either unable to furnish new margins or from many small investors made panicky by the market's exhibition of hopelessness and helplessness. Each fresh dip pried loose additional holdings.

Every division suffered severely. Even the best rails were excitedly thrown overboard at tumbling quotations. Utilities, apparently under bear attack, readily gave way. Many industrial and specialty issues also showed no resisting powers.

REASON HAVING been thrown to the winds, it is impossible to guess how far the sacrificing of securities, regardless of the prices realized, may go. Pessimism has gone so far that stock quotations have been driven down lower than at any time in the last two and a half years, notwithstanding all the progress the nation has made since then.

Just as nobody could foresee what would end last year's madness, so nobody can foretell just what will check the current madness. But something will.

EMOTIONS POOR GUIDE IN STOCK DEALINGS

Pre-Crash Optimists Will Be Worst Pessimists Just Before Rise Begins

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—If the stock market responded promptly and accurately to the laws of mathematics, the wealth of the world would soon drift to the control of statisticians.

But in this rough and tumble world of ours, stock prices reflect prevailing emotions, whims and fashions, as well as more sedate mathematical ratios. The recent sustained, drastic, though entirely orderly weakness, reflected the fact that many people were scared. It is an axiom that meritorious securities will not be available at such low prices when the investment and speculative public again becomes hopeful. Past performances indicate that the American people, descendants of courageous pioneers who developed a wilderness and conquered the Indians, do not remain scared long.

M. S. Rukeyser

Those who conduct their financial operations on their emotions are a blundering lot. They showed a new high level of confidence in the future last year on the very eve of the panic, when business curves were already pointing downward. The same type will attain a maximum of pessimism at this other end of the business cycle just about when the bottom of business depression is reached.

THIN MARGINS RISKY

These are hazardous days for the thinly protected marginal speculator, who staked his fortune on imponderable forces. The cash outright buyer is in a different position, and may go ahead confidently whenever he thinks that stocks are reasonably priced in relation to earnings, assets and dividend yield. Incidentally, the current yield on 90 leading stocks is now 5.44 per cent compared with 4.44 per cent for good bonds. The best stocks yielded somewhat more in the depression of 1921.

Incidentally, the bear markets have carried stock prices back several years, wiping out not only the fluff of bull speculation but also any allowance for the actual ploughing back into corporate treasuries of excess earnings in the meantime. Railroad stocks have fallen to the levels prevailing four years ago; industrials are back to the level of April 1, 1927, and public utilities are selling at the same average prices that prevailed on December 7, 1928.

TICKER SPEEDS NEWS

In striking contrast to the panic which raged a year ago, the recent establishment of new low levels has been distinctly orderly. One important contributing factor to the new stability, in the face of liquidation, has been the new high speed ticker, which has kept the financial public informed without a lag running more than a minute or two. With the slow ticker of last year, reports were hours behind actual executions, and the technical efficiency not only added to the fright and bewilderment of sellers, but also operated to withhold bids from potential buyers who would have placed orders if they had known precisely what was going on.

Another contributing factor to comparative stability is the fact that the short interest is larger than a year ago. Nevertheless, the manner in which stock prices have yielded indicates that the short interest, though larger than a year ago, is not as large as it would have been if the authorities had not given the impression a few weeks ago that certain aspects of short selling were socially wicked. The cushion of potential short covering therefore has not been as substantial as it would have been under natural conditions.

BANKS WARNED

Though insisting that there are gorgeous bargains in bonds and mortgages for individual investors, Dr. B. M. Anderson, Jr., of the Chase National Bank, warns banks against loading up, pointing out that losses will be incurred if they buy bonds when money is cheap and resell them a few months or a year later when money is dearer and in greater demand by business. The individual investor, on the other hand, presumably can hold the cheap bonds until maturity.

F. L. Dame, president of the North American Company, in referring to the longer team outlook for the public utility industry, told me:

"One of the cheerful aspects of the situation is that industries which have been going ahead at a rapid pace and have not been able to take advantage of the developments in research which would improve the efficiency of their operations are taking this period of slackness and cheap money to improve their properties so that as business comes back the power companies are going to receive a considerable benefit from the added requirements."

URGES SPREAD OF SOLOS

In connection with the meeting on Wednesday of labor union chieftains at Chicago to consider a reduction in working hours, Milton W. Harrison, president of the National Association of Railroad and Public Utility Securities, speaking for railroad investors suggested that, without increasing the total payroll, the railroads could spread around employment among a distinctly larger group by giving present employes shorter runs each month.

Mr. Harrison's specific scheme would increase the number of employed by 75,000 but the net monthly remuneration of the present employes would be reduced. The steel companies and other industrials, following President Hoover's suggestion, have been following this system of increasing personnel through spreading employment.

General Refractories At High Yield

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

CONTINUING OUR studies of companies whose stocks are selling on an attractive investment basis, attention is naturally directed to the General Refractories Company. In making these analyses stocks have been selected which are backed by good records of dividend return and profits. Companies which have shown only moderate declines in earnings this year are preferred. The stocks must be selling to give an attractive yield and the prices should not be over 15 times the average earnings per share for the past three years.

General Refractories Company appears to fit these requirements. During the first half of 1930 net profit was greater than in the corresponding period of last year. A drop in earnings was shown in the third quarter and a further decline is expected for the fourth quarter.

Sales Well Maintained

THE COMPANY IS one of the leading makers of fire brick and other refractory materials. The earnings results of the present year closely parallel those of its leading competitors which indicates that the management has been getting its share of the business and has been operating in an efficient manner.

Sales were at a high rate in the first six months of the year since steel mills and other consumers were taking advantage of the depression to reline furnaces and to make other repairs. It seems probable that the business will be dull until a general revival in industrial activity takes place and consumers resume purchase of fire brick for repairs. The tendency of consumers to make repairs in dull periods has given the refractories industry an exceptional degree of stability.

Shows Large Yield

THE STOCK IS on a regular $4 annual dividend basis. Three extra payments of 25 cents each this year brought total dividends to $4.75 a share. At the present market price of about 46, the regular dividends indicate a yield of 8.7 per cent.

In the third quarter of 1930 net profit was $404,722, which was equivalent to $1.35 a share and covered dividends for the period by a good margin. This compared with $659,082 or $2.19 a share in the corresponding period of 1929, which was the best quarter in the company's history. In the first nine months of 1930 net profit was $1,786,231 or $5.95 a share compared with $1,863,392 or $6.21 a share in the corresponding period of 1929 and with $884,187 or $2.95 a share in 1928.

Priced 7.5 Times Earnings

NET PROFIT FOR the full year of 1929 was $2,553,124 or $8.51 a share. This compared with $1,374,581 or $6.11 a share in 1928 and with $1,425,558 or $6.35 a share in 1927. This indicates average earnings per share for the three years of $6.99. The stock is currently selling at only 6.5 times earnings.

The company has no preferred stock or funded debt. Recent expansion has increased the plant account from $15,296,254 at the end of 1929 to $18,502,212 on September 30. This increased bills and accounts payable and decreased cash so that it would not be surprising if the company would do some financing in the near future to improve its current position.

COSDEN OIL IN RECEIVERSHIP

WILMINGTON, Nov. 10.—Judge Nields, of the U. S. District Court, has appointed George N. Moore, of Fort Worth, Tex., and former Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris, of Wilmington, as receivers for the Cosden Oil Company.

Receivership proceedings were filed by Merrick Drillings Company and Texas Corporation, which is a creditor in the amount of $17,000. It was alleged that although the corporation is solvent in that its assets exceed its liabilities, it is unable to meet maturing obligations because of lack of cash. Cosden Oil has consented to the receivership.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 10.—George L. Ransom, of Tulsa, Okla., and E. E. Berl, of Wilmington, were today appointed receivers for the Monarch Royalties Corporation, Tulsa. The proceedings were brought by Charles J. Rogers, of Kansas City, Mo. The corporation consented to the action, stating that its assets exceeded liabilities, but that it lacked cash.

Youngstown Sheet After Emsco Firm

Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company is negotiating for acquisition of Emsco Derrick and Equipment Company and plans to merge it with the Continental Supply Company, Youngstown Sheet's oil well supply subsidiary.

Emsco has had a working arrangement with the Youngstown Sheet subsidiaries for some time for the sale of its products outside of California territory.

Stock Exchange Topics

Corn Products Earnings For Current Quarter Put at $4,500,000.

Conservative estimates are that Corn Products will show earnings in the current quarter of around $4,500,000, which would compare with the record returns of last year. Such a showing would mean that the balance for the stock for 1930 would be slightly in excess of $5 a share, against $5.75 in 1929, which was another record-breaking period. In some speculative quarters, it has been contended that the actual showing will be in excess of those conservative estimates.

When the general market definitely has turned, it is probable that American Tobacco will be among the leaders. The company has indicated definitely that its business has been depression-proof during a trying period for most other lines. Sales of its cigarets have been showing impressive gains, which are in sharp contrast with those of some other manufacturers. At times recently, the stock has been meeting impressive demand during recessions. That buying has absorbed what forced liquidation has come into the issue.

Automobile production figures continue to make a decidedly unfavorable comparison with preceding years. October automobile production in the United States and Canada is estimated at 156,743 units, as against 230,888 in September, and 394,540 in October, 1929. For the first 10 months of this year total production is estimated at 3,223,256, as against 5,269,216 in the corresponding period of 1929.

In circumstances such as prevail at the moment in the stock market, many people are apt to overlook the fact that though selling is rather heavy and persistent, there must be a buyer for each share or thousand shares of stock sold. The market is now approaching the end of a two months' period of decline, and many millions of shares of stock have been dumped overboard in that length of time. Much has been heard of "distress" selling, forced liquidation, or whatever one cares to call it. Corresponding shrinkage has taken place in the borrowings of brokers against such collateral. But during that interval the tendency has been, as it invariably is under such conditions, to place emphasis entirely on the character of the selling. The character of the buying power which has been absorbing stocks is apt to be overlooked. But there is no denying the fact that tremendous loan contraction signifies that securities have been passing into stronger hands.

Though directors of the Radio Corporation ordered payment of the regular dividends due on the preferred stock, the junior issue displayed fresh weakness Saturday, dropping to new low levels. The decline in the stock was explained by keenly disappointing character of operating results shown for the September quarter and the nine months. Net for the September quarter amounted to $365,654, indicating that the company dipped into surplus to the extent of $935,846 to provide for payment of the preferred dividends calling for a total of $1,302,500. And for the nine months net income was $870,753 against dividend requirements of $3,900,400 on the preferred stocks for the period, meaning that $3,029,647 was taken from surplus to cover such disbursements.

It is the well-accepted theory of the stock market that heavy liquidation of the best grade stocks indicates the beginning of the end of a bear market. Timid and poorly advised speculators and investors usually throw over their best stocks at the beginning of a downward move, in order to protect their more speculative holdings. This is because the "poor stuff" has fallen so far that a technical recovery at least is looked for. But shrewd investors and seasoned traders review the situation carefully, liquidating first the poor stoeks which they think will be unable to weather the storm of a severe reaction or a prolonged bear market.

"SECTION 4

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Stupid'

Helen Trent did not like Mr. G. W. Lawlor.

She disliked him the first time she saw him, when she went to his office to investigate his advertisement for a stenographer.

However, Mr. Lawlor would pay $20 a week. Helen's mother was an invalid and their small income needed augmenting, so Helen took the position.

The $20 that Helen received every week was the difference between barely having enough and being able to provide certain luxuries that Mrs. Trent needed.

And so Helen continued to permit Lawlor to call her "stupid" whenever he felt so inclined, which was all too often.

Mr. Lawlor's business card read "Investments." This covered a wide field of financial endeavor. So far as Helen could find out from the letters Lawlor dictated to her, he did a fairly flourishing business picking up options and reselling them, taking second mortgages at tempting discounts and making profits in a score of similar ways.

Helen couldn't complain that Lawlor took any personal interest in her. She would have walked out on him if he had tried to show any. There were times when she wanted to quit her job, and was tempted to do so, because Lawlor was one of those cocksure, arrogant men, who took it for granted that because he paid a person a salary he could be just as impolite and uncivil as he pleased.

Man Calls

Many a time he could call out, "Where's my memo pad, stupid? Why not leave it on my desk?" Or, perhaps, it was something else. He seemed to enjoy calling Helen "stupid."

One day a quiet appearing young man came to the office. Mr. Albert Harmon looked admiringly at Helen Trent. He was thinking that she was a mighty pretty girl, with splendid eyes and a sweet smile.

Lawlor came in just then. He took Harmon into the inner office. They were there a long while. Finally there came the call. "Hey, Miss Trent!"

Helen went in.

"This is Mr. Harmon, he's going into partnership with me," Lawlor said; "take this."

"This" was a form of partnership agreement that Lawlor dictated. In this way Helen learned the young man was going to invest $12,000; that his investment would be protected by certain securities, that the profits of the concern, thereafter to be known as the Sterling Investment Company would be shared fifty-fifty.

That afternoon a new desk arrived. It was put in the outer office, not far from where Helen had her small desk.

The weeks went on and on and all seemed serene.

Harmon Objects

Lawlor seemed so occupied with affairs he was almost affable to Helen, only now and then, when dictating to her, if she asked a question or for a repetition, he would say, "Use your ears, stupid."

As far as Lawlor knew or cared, Helen didn't mind this.

One day Lawlor rushed out with his memo pad in hand.

"Haven't you got the Glidden memo on your pad, Miss Trent?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then why be so stupid? Why didn't you remind me?"

"Why—why, Mr. Lawlor——"

"Listen, stupid," he interrupted, "I gave you memos to help remind me. Now I've missed my appointment with Glidden, a very important one."

"The appointment is for tomorrow, you have turned your memo pad over a page ahead," Helen said, coldly.

Lawlor looked at the memo pad.

"That's funny," he muttered.

"Very funny," Helen said, quietly.

She noticed that Mr. Harmon had arisen from his desk and was watching them. Harmon followed Lawlor into the inner office and the door wasn't quite closed.

"Is it necessary to be insulting to Miss Trent?" Harmon asked, sharply.

"Listen, Harmon, the girl means nothing to me—I never mix my love affairs with business. I'm not enough interested in her to insult her."

"You have a habit of calling her stupid. I don't believe that sort of thing makes an employe any more faithful—if you get my meaning, and I object to having her feeling hurt."

"Well, look here, Harmon, seems to me you are dictating a bit, but I didn't know it was that way—sweet on her, eh?"

"I admire her; she is an efficient and charming young lady."

"Well, I guess my calling her stupid won't kill her. It is a good thing to keep your employes sort of on edge, as you will learn when you have more business experience—and take my advice, fall in love with someone outside of your office, it's safer, doesn't interfere with your business."

"Thanks, Lawlor, but I don't need advice. I'm just asking you not to be so harsh and ungentlemanly with the girl. She is a little lady."

"Oh, we won't quarrel — it's nothing to me if you like a dozen of our stenographers — can always get more——"

"Just a minute, Lawlor—how did you mean that?"

There was a bit of silence. Helen, listening, feared there would be a fight. Her eyes were bright, her cheeks red. She was very happy, all of a sudden.

"Look here, Harmon, you got me wrong. I see you are in love with the girl—we won't quarrel—"

"I'm afraid I am in love with her, Lawlor, so much so that I don't want to hear you call her stupid, and as for your insinuation—"

"I apologize—forget it, Harmon," Lawlor growled.

Telephones Woman

Harmon came out. He seemed surprised when he saw that the door was partly open.

"Did you hear?" he asked, softly.

"Yes, Mr. Harmon."

"Well, it's true—glad you heard, it gives me nerve enough now to tell you how I feel."

And so, for several months, Helen was treated with great courtesy by Lawlor. She and Bert Harmon were secretly engaged.

One day a man called for Lawlor. Both Lawlor and Harmon were away. He left a card. When Lawlor got back and saw it he seemed nervous. He got Helen to call a number.

"If a man's voice answers, hang up," he ordered.

A woman's voice answered. Lawlor went into his office and closed the door to talk. After this Helen saw him stowing away things in a traveling bag. She saw him take all the money from the safe and bundles of securities, valuable negotiable paper that belonged partly to the firm and partly to clients.

Helen stood by the window.

"That man who was here before is coming up again, I think. He just came in the building," she said.

"Tell him I've gone to Boston. Don't let him come in here, stupid" Lawlor yelled. He went into his office and locked the door, leaving the traveling bag in the outer office. Helen got busy. Then she pretended to be talking with someone. After a while she tapped at Lawlor's door.

"He as much as called me a liar," she said, meekly, " and he is coming back in fifteen minutes."

Lawlor made no reply, but grabbed the bag and departed in a rush.

When he got to his room in a hotel in a distant city he opened the bag. All that it contained was three large telephone books and a sheet of paper on which was written:

"Compliments of 'STUPID!'"

A Glimpse Into the Hearts of the People

RUNNING our bureau, or clearing house, for ideas sometimes becomes a little irksome. We must be polite, of course. But there are oh! so many trying moments, hours, days, weeks, months, years. Occasionally, however, someone will tip toe into our office and corner us with something really worth while. These moments repay us for the long, sleepless hours when we must fight back with our sales resistance, our negative nods. Such a happy moment came not later than yesterday, when two pretty little ladies calmly offered a corking idea. "See here!" they said. "No one seems to know who shoots who any more. Rothstein! Limbs Diamond! Why can't the police start a Confessions Magazine? Invite contributions. Arrest and convict."

In a moment they were gone. Swallowed up into the night before we could so much as plant a kiss upon their foreheads and ask whether they be the Duncan sisters or no.

Should Suspend Rates

Pennsylvania's Public Service Commission Needs the Authority Held by Similar Bodies Elsewhere.

While the Public Service Commission is badly in need of disciplining by the new Pinchot administration, a change in the law governing its powers is also necessary.

The commission should be given the right temporarily to suspend new rates of railroads or public utilities. This power is necessary for the protection of the general public. The change would merely place the Pennsylvania commission on an equal footing with similar bodies in other states.

Under the existing law, a utility wishing to change its rates is merely required to file a copy of the new schedule with the commission. The new rates automatically go into effect. Users of the service have no redress except to make a formal complaint and to go to the expense of presenting their case to the commission. This usually takes a long period of time, during which the new rates must be paid. In the short haul steel freight rate case, the new tariffs were placed into effect on May 20 and the case is still uncompleted.

But in other states there is a different story. When the railroads in Illinois and Indiana announced corresponding short haul rate increases, the commissions of those states temporarily suspended the tariffs before they were placed into effect. Then they proceeded to hold hearings. The Indiana commission already has permanently denied the rate increases.

While Pittsburgh industry has paid over $1,000,000 for the increased cost of short hauls of steel, other districts still enjoy the old rates.

It is the duty of the Legislature to bar the possibility of such unfair delays in the future by giving the commission the power to suspend rates.

Wasted Gas

Waste Is Deplorable, but Think of the Improvement Over Former Years.

The assertion is made in a suit filed against the Clairton By-Products Coke Company that, in order not to oversupply the market and break the price, it is deliberately permitting to go to waste enough gas to supply the needs of New York, Chicago and Boston.

If the charge is true the waste is deplorable, and it is to be hoped the company will find some profitable way to store the gas until it can be used. The extension of pipe lines through which natural gas is forced, to lengths undreamed of in former years, suggests that the time may be near when manufactured gas will also be piped to distant communities.

Whatever may be the situation with respect to waste at the Clairton by-product coke ovens, it is not to be compared in magnitude with the waste in the old beehive coke ovens. Countless millions of dollars worth of fuels, chemicals, drugs, dyes, fertilizers, explosives and other substances were wasted in the old process.

The time will come when the burning of coal in any form without recovery of its valuable by-products will be considered wasteful.

Murky Days

Careful Firing of Furnaces Will Reduce the Smoke Nuisance.

We have had some murky days lately—days when, there being no wind, the atmosphere was filthy with smoke.

Cold weather has brought domestic furnaces into action again. That is the explanation for the increase in the smoke nuisance. The Bureau of Smoke Regulation keeps watch over mills, locomotives and steamboats, but it does not have control over homes.

If householders are to be prevented from polluting the air with unnecessary smoke from their furnaces, it will have to be done with moral suasion.

They should consider that dense smoke evidences wastefulness in the use of coal—that with complete combustion there would be no smoke. They should consider the damage done to curtains, clothing, wall paper and carpets by smoke. They should consider the unfavorable effect of impure air on health.

The Department of Health has prepared some suggestions for firing furnaces which, if followed, will reduce the amount of soot from your chimneys. You can get, in considerable detail, instructions for firing from a new pocket-size booklet with flexible cloth cover entitled "Questions and Answers for the Coal Fireman," which may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at a price of five cents.

Lights for Air Routes

State and Federal Governments Deserve Thanks for Speedy Installation.

The promise is made that all four of Pennsylvania's new airways will be lighted and available for night flying by January 1.

Beacon towers are already up on the route from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh via Harrisburg, and electric companies are now raising the lines. They say the job will be done by the end of next month. This is a link in the new transcontinental route on which service was started October 25.

The new McConnellsburg-Pittsburgh airway is also being illuminated.

The United States Department of Commerce is laying out these lines.

The State Aeronautics Commission is attending to the illumination of two other routes which connect with the federal airway at McConnellsburg and promises to have the beacons lighted by December 1.

Thanks are due both the state and federal governments for the speedy installation.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Tommy Is Coming Back

Heroic episode off Cape Cod, which is near the Provincetown players.

Man picked up afloat in open rowboat. All rowboats are open. That's what we like about a rowboat. It's not subject to change without notice.

Ocean liner stopped for him in spite of the protests of the passengers who were betting on the high field in the pool.

He refused to be rescued. He proved to be a newspaper photographer. He said:

"I'll get a picture of the Shamrock Fifth finishing that race if it takes all winter."

Yet, Sir Thomas Lipton, of the family of the same name, announces that he is again a candidate for the Shamrock Sixth and will build new Shamrocks as fast as they are defeated.

He intends to keep the boat builders busy. What a navy the old boy would have if he were only equipped with letters of marque and reprisal.

We were hoping that Sir Tommy would win those barge scampers off Block Island last fall. We don't know much about marine capers and yachting antics, but we do know that Tommy is a great sportsman.

Sir Lipton lost so we must have been wishing in the wrong direction. The first day the waves were too high, the second they were too low, and the third there weren't any waves at all.

Sometimes there was no breeze, often there was too much wind and quite frequently the sailors had to fan their soup with their hats to cool it off.

So you can see that yachting is not all a bed of roses. The new Shamrock will be ready for the next contest in 1932, which is a presidential year from start to finish.

Our hearts are with Tommy even when we are sailing away from him.

But distance makes the heart grow fonder. We seem to supply the essential distance without difficulty.

Tommy is one sportsman who can lose and laugh. It takes practice. Still, we consider that he has a good racing record. He has had five Shamrocks defeated by the defenders. But he has never had a Shamrock captured by the Coast Guard.

Once again we wish him the best and trust that he will win the America's Cup. We hope he passes the defender and stays that way.

But as Tommy says, "My boats have been so slow that I haven't passed anything but the lump sugar for the last thousand banquets."

THE SOLAR SYSTEM UNIT

By Archibald Henderson

The general public often wonders, no doubt, why astronomers and physicists keep on making estimates of their own units of measure. How long is a yard? What is the velocity of a light-ray? What is the distance from the earth to the sun? Questions like this are continually bobbing up anew for settlement. And for the very obvious reason that no former estimate or calculated determination was quite accurate.

The limits of error were roughly known; and certainly it is always known that with imperfect instruments and imperfect observers, there is little or no chance for absolutely perfect results.

Consider, for example, the velocity of light, which has been estimated again and again, especially in recent years by Prof. Michelson, of the University of Chicago. In 1926, he made an extremely accurate determination, reaching the result 186,284 miles a second. The error was estimated at only one part in several hundred thousand, either plus or minus. Dr. Michelson is preparing now to make a new determination in order to secure even greater accuracy.

For centuries, astronomers have been trying to make an accurate determination of the distance from the earth to the sun. This represents the calculated mean distance, as there is no way to determine this distance directly.

Consider two imaginary lines drawn from the center of the sun to the two ends of the earth's radius. Now the value of the earth's radius is accurately known, and the problem is to determine the small angle between the two imaginary lines from the sun's center to the ends of this radius. This is the "fundamental angle" to which has been given the name solar parallax.

In his comprehensive and informing work, the great astronomer, Henry Smith Williams, has compiled the knowledge on this subject. Various estimates were made by nineteenth century astronomers; and the value for the solar system yardstick was generally accepted as 92,870,000 miles. As early as 1896, the American astronomer, Simon Newcomb, made a careful study of the question, from nine groups of estimates made by earlier astronomers. He adopted as the solar parallax 8.797 seconds of arc, plus or minus .007 seconds. Harkness, five years earlier, arrived at the value 8.809, plus or minus .006.

Prior to this time many observations had been made in the effort to arrive at the correct result, notably observation of the transit of Venus across the face of the sun, calculations from observation of the occultation of the moons of Jupiter, observations of Mars, heliometer observations of the minor planets; Victoria and Sappho. Other calculations were made based on the constant of abberation of light, studies of the parallactic inequality of the moon, and the spectroscopic measurement of the earth's orbital speed.

In 1900, as the result of the famous "Eros Campaign," A. R. Hinks arrived at the value of the solor system yardstick: 92,900,000 miles with a solar parallax 8.807 seconds of arc. In 1911, the Paris Conference adopted 149,450,000 kilometers, or roughly 92,870,000 miles. Mitchell and Abbott, writing in 1907, confirm this value, which corresponds to a parallax of 8.8. This value of the solar parallax differs from that obtained by Hinks by only seven thousandths of a second of arc.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

It isn't the original cost that makes a Good Deed so expensive . . . IT'S THE UPKEEP!

All of us can be noble in spurts. There's a tremendous thrill in doing a fine act . . . the world gives Generous Gestures a Big Hand. And while the thrill is new and the applause vigorous, we're 100 per cent for righteousness.

But presently the applause lessens and the novelty dims. That act which yesterday was so dramatic becomes today mere routine. And we realize that, having started to Be Noble, we're expected to go on—and on—and on—which is quite another matter! Then comes the strain. Can we live up to our magnificent preliminaries after they become an old story? Can we endure being unselfish and heroic after "the tumult and the shouting die" and the audience departs?

I'm thinking of a Good Deed I've recently seen started. Mary has taken her dead sister's baby to raise with her own little ones. "What a beautiful thing to do!" you say. That's what everyone is saying. All day long the neighbors are dropping in, with gifts for the new baby and praise for Mary. Pretty soon they won't drop in so often.

They'll begin to take Mary's good deed for granted. Now and then they'll speak of her . . . then go on to talk of something else. BUT MARY WILL HAVE TO GO ON LIVING WITH THAT GOOD DEED AND ITS EXPENSIVE CONSEQUENCES YEAR AFTER YEAR . . . AND, BELIEVE ME, IT WILL BE NO CINCH! For a good deed can demoralize a life as completely as a bad one. And righteousness will destroy your established peace and quiet as thoroughly as wickedness.

This comes as a bitter surprise to most of us. God, we think, should make things particularly cozy for those who do His will. But He doesn't. If you wish to share His glory He evidently expects you to go 50-50 on His grief. And that's all right—if you don't weaken. But of course, you always do!

Why aren't good deeds as popular as they should be? This is why. IT'S HEAVENLY TO START THEM . . . BUT IT'S HELL TO SEE THEM THROUGH.

And yet that's the real test of character. Any lively spirit can be a sensational starter. It takes neither great courage nor phenomenal goodness to inaugurate a noble act. In fact, it's often a great relief to drop our regular chores and be an Onward-Christion-Soldier. BUT IT TAKES HEROIC GODLINESS TO HANG ON TO A GOOD DEED AND SEE IT THROUGH AFTER IT HAS CEASED TO BE FRONT PAGE NEWS!

Give the starters plenty of credit—they deserve it. But reserve your biggest tribute for the patient plodders who carry on where the starters leave off. They're the ones who prove what stuff is in humanity. THEY'RE THE ONES WHO ARE BUILDING CIVILIZATION.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Content, a Flower

It is not bought with any coin men know
In all the crowded markets of the earth;
It is not stained with minted
gold's red glow,
Not watered by men's tears, nor sunned by mirth.
It does not flourish in the courts of kings
Where revel, pomp and glory play their part;
Its radiant bloom, instead, most often springs
From out the childlike soul, the simple heart.

Few know its worth, and fewer still will pay
The price with which it can alone be bought,
For few will travel an untrodden way
And scale the lonely mountain-peaks of thought;
Yet splendors of a world with heaven blent
Are granted those who pluck the flower, content.

A Pair of Shoes.

RANCHER | TANNER

These are busy days in many lines of business—especia in ESSENTIAL lines. Winter is approaching. Men a women are overhauling their wardrobes, fitting themselves for the cold weather. Despite the so-called depression, American people still wear clothes, hats, shoes—and this seas they are buying them the same as in the past. The mon they spend for these essentials is still distributed among millions of men and women who produce them, and in turn spent for other articles.

Fewer private yachts are being built this year than la but yachting is not a major industry. Meanwhile the fund mental industries—the industries that feed you, clothe yo shelter you, and move you from place to place—go on as th have.

This is sometimes forgotten. It is well to remember Take shoes, for instance. You buy a pair, and perhaps thi that is all you have done. But in fact you have given a job the cowboy on the ranch, the worker in the tannery, the han in the factory, the salesman in the store—and a hundred or others in between. They also are consumers. Your purchas helps them to buy—to buy goods that you yourself ma produce.

Those able to buy essentials, or even luxuries, are wakin up to the fact that the present is a good time to do it. Price are low. A dollar is worth more than it was. Many who save their dollars are now "stocking up" with clothing, shoes, hat furniture, other necessities. They know that a national bargai era will not last forever.

Also—whether they know it or not—they are helpin others.

These sketches show how.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Diary of a modern Pepys: U and greetings from Dean Palmer and Bob Davis in Germany and posting a manuscript with usual misgivings. My wife s pretty at breakfast that were we not married I would have proposed. So across town and accosted by six beggars.

In the afternoon came Raymond Dickson, Dave Picton and Karl Hoblitzelle and none in a gay mood. To drive along the tousled water front and to the dock to say good-bye to Ray Long again sailing for Russia, the gadabout. And always I watch a boat sail a little sadly.

Dined at a "home cooking" place and partook of spoon bread, the first tasted since coming to the city. Later to see the colored harlequin Bill Robinson and would rather execute his tap dances than paint a Mona Lisa. To my chambers chuckling over Kin Hubbard's line he liked distant relatives best.

According to telephoned information, 22,600 beggars collect two millions from New York pedestrians yearly. Parkins, my cup and pencils!

* * *

The most annoying of the flood of beggars at the moment are those hatless—but by no means breathless—pests who hop on auto running boards, stick heads in windows and whine their whoppers.

* * *

Most beggars, both men and women, either chew tobacco or use snuff. Tests have shown people will rarely give alms to those smoking a pipe, cigar or cigarette.

* * *

The two most opulent beggars are legless men who wheel themselves about on portable platforms. Such a ride on crowded 42d street during rush hours averages $25.

Fruitful returns are from inebriated homegoers accosted on dark side streets late at night. Some of these panhandlers have made $100 a night.

* * *

About 5 per cent of New York's moochers are deserving. The remainder use spoils to gratify drug and alcoholic excesses. Charity experts say only the genuinely crippled and the blind who display license badges should be assisted.

* * *

A new panhandling wrinkle is the fairly well dressed fellow who sidles out of a doorway jingling a few coins in his hand. With feigned embarrassment he declares he needs just another nickel to buy medicine for a sick child. Few respond to such distress with less than a quarter. Often it is a dollar.

* * *

Broadway is a difficult street for the professional alms-seeker. He must face that innate shrinking of wayfarers from being regarded as suckers. Easiest pickings are in so-called middle-class neighborhoods. A Chinese rarely passes a beggar by.

* * *

In streets tumbling off either hip of Broadway after theater a always a number of blind beggars. People leaving plays, especially tear jerkers, are extreme susceptible to sympathetic reactions to poverty. The blind always wait for players themselves. Among chorus girls notably is superstition ill-luck befalls those who do not drop a coin in the blind man's cup.

From a psychology magazine: "As a man nears middle age he should be proud of his vanished youth. If he still cherishes adolescent diversions he is becoming senile."

And just when I was saving to buy a trick Shetland that could read numbers.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Has the accumulation of money robbed you of the fine human qualities you once possessed?

Now that you are on Easy street have you lost all sympathy for those who have not met with equal success in the world of finance?

Do you feel that they are too inferior to be retained as friends and that they should not expect you to regard them as in former years?

On the other hand have you considered that your success or your ability to make money is not due entirely to your own shrewdness or business ability.

Fortunate breaks, investments turning out right for you, while others just as bright and as shrewd have lost on their investments.

You took a chance on something regarding which you took advice from men who were supposed to know about such things.

Your friends who lost may have dropped all, in the same circumstances.

You feel the power of money and it has hardened you to such an extent that your life is now devoted to still greater accumulation.

You learned to shut your eyes and close your heart to the sorrows you may cause others in adding to your holdings.

Are you losing the finest things in life?
